EDWARD COLEMAN, General Manager for the Colonies Sydney, August.

STEAM to ENGLAND.—For BRISTOL, from MELBOURNE.—The splendid auxiliary screw steam clipper ROYAL BRIDE, 2060 tons burthen, ALEXANDER NEWLANDS (late of the Champion of the Seas), commander, will be despatched for the above port, from Melbourne, early in November.

This vessel, now on her first voyage, has been built expressly with a view to meet the requirements of the Australian trade, combining the first-class clipper ship with the advantage of the auxiliary screw.

No expense has been spared in arranging her accommodation for the health and comfort of passengers, and the owners confidently recommend her as the best appointed ship in the trade.

Cornishmen, and residents in the West of England, will find this a good opportunity for reaching their native counties, as they will be forwarded by railway, free of expense, to Plymouth or any intermediate station on the Great Western Railway, immediately on the arrival of the ship.

Families and ladies will find this an opportunity that seldom offers, as in addition to her accommodation being of a superior description, she takes but a limited number in the saloon, and no expense has been spared to ensure comfort.

An experienced surgeon accompanies the ship.

FARES:

Saloon—As per agreement.

Second Cabin—£35 including stewards' attendance.

Third Cabin—£18, £22, and £25, as to accommodation.

Saloon passengers are provided with every requisite, including bed, bedding, plate, &c.

The Office of the Steam Navigation and Pilot Board, 20th October, 1858.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the Flagstaff, formerly situated on the round hill, bearing S. W. by S. half S. from Nobby's Island, Newcastle, New South Wales, has been removed to Nobby's, and is placed in the immediate vicinity of the Light-house. The usual tidal signals will, therefore, for the future, be exhibited from this site.

The yard has been placed east and west, and the flood tide signal, consisting of a black ball with two red pendants underneath, will be exhibited at the eastern yard arm during the flood; and the ebb tide signal, of two black balls over one red pendant, at the western yard-arm during the ebb.

With a view of further denoting the state of the tide, the following alteration in the tidal signal will be made, on and after the first day of November next, viz.—

On the commencement of the flood tide, the usual tidal signal, as previously described, will be hoisted at the eastern yard-arm of the flagstaff, and will be kept flying half-mast until half-flood, when it will be hoisted close up to the yard-arm, and will remain in that position during the continuance of the flood tide.

As soon as the ebb tide makes, the ebb tide signal will be hoisted at the western yard-arm, and will be kept flying in that position until half ebb, when it will be hauled down half-mast, and will so remain during the continuance of the ebb tide.

Masters of vessels requiring a pilot during the day, should, as soon as they may consider themselves to be within a sufficient distance to enable their signals to be made out, hoist a Union Jack at the foretopmast head, which signal will be at once answered from the Flagstaff by the exhibition of a similar flag; and, if by night, by the firing of a gun, or by burning a blue or by a flash light, which signal will be answered from the look-out station, in the vicinity of the Light-house, by the exhibition of a blue light.

The above company will receive applications for the insurance of houses and other buildings, merchandise, and chattel property of every description, in town or country, at reasonable rates of premium.

The capital of the company is £250,000, with power to increase the amount to meet the business of the company.

Where urgency is necessary, a deposit will be received at once for insuring property until the next meeting of the Board of Directors.

The present Company has been formed with the view of securing a portion of the profits to be derived from an important and useful business—exclusively colonial—and to preserve the income of the old Company from passing into the hands of the English Companies, and thereby becoming a loss to the country generally.

Special arrangements made with the owners of fluctuating stocks, if required.

The Directors beg to call the attention of the public to the following extract from the last half-yearly report:—

"The present position of the Sydney Insurance Company may be gathered from the following statement of facts.—It was established in October 1855, with a subscribed capita of £250,000, of which £25,000 was called up. In April 1858, or within two years and a half of its establishment, the capital, including the reserve fund and the contingent fund, has increased to £36,952 2s. 8d. being an addition of nearly 50 per cent. The increase is not due to a fortunate exemption from losses, for during the same period the Company has paid the sum of £12,799 7s. 9d. in satisfaction of claims arising from fires, and has divided among its shareholders the sum of £4824 6s. 6d in half-yearly dividends, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum on the capital paid up

"The indirect advantage that the colonyhas gained by the large reduction that took place in the rates charged for fire insurance by other offices immediately on the establishment of this Company, cannot be accurately estimated; but considering the fact that £36,866 14s. has been paid in premiums to this office alone, which would otherwise have been lost to the colony, and that a reduction of upwards of 25 per cent, was made in the rates, it is evident that this community must have gained nearly £50,000 by the establishment of this Company."

The rates of insurance are as follow, and no alteration is made in them, except there are circumstances calculated to increase the risk.

Buildings—metal or slated roof, stone or brick, 2s. 3d., and upwards.
Buildings shingled ditto, ditto ditto, 3s. 9d., and upwards.

Commercial Banking Company.

This Society was established on the 27th January, 1857, for the purpose of collecting information of all insolvencies, assignments, compromises, frauds, dishonor of bills, powers of attorneys, bills of sale, and other securities, or unjust preferences, and to keep a registry of the same for the inspection of its members.

The Society has succeeded in obtaining a large mass of information, which has been the means, in numerous instances, of saving subscribers from heavy losses; its members are steadily increasing, and its influence proportionately extending.

Kindred institutions are now being established in the sister colonies, and it will be in direct communication with this society.

The Committee respectfully invite the attention of the mercantile community, feeling assured that this society has only to be properly known in order to be extensively supported and for its advantages to be appreciated.

The Secretary is in attendance at the office daily, from 10 to 11 o'clock a.m., and from 2 to 3 p.m.

Accumulated Funds and Capital paid up, exceeding 1,088,000
Of which £130,000 is invested in the colony, in Government and other securities.
Reserve Surplus Fund, £214,000—with unlimited liability of the shareholders.
The Directors continue to grant Policies of Insurance in both departments of the Company's business upon terms which will be found as liberal as those of any other office
The fact of this Company having, since its establishment in 1836, paid claims exceeding One Million Sterling, (£1,000,000), those during 1857 exceeding £200,000, is the best guarantee that can be offered of its liberality; whilst its enormous annual income, £450,000, and its large amount of accumulated funds, exceeding One Million Sterling, (£1,000,000,) together with the unlimited liability of all the shareholders, are the best proofs of its stability.
Tables of rates for Fire and Life Insurance, in all its branches, and every information, can be obtained from

VICTORIA, by the grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith &c. &c.,
To the SHERIFF of New South Wales, or his lawful deputy. Greeting:

WHEREAS, upon the petition to the Honorable the Judges of our Supreme Court of New South Wales of HENRY PRIOR PALSER, of the South Head Road, Sydney, in the colony aforesaid, grocer, against WILLIAM DUNCAN and ZACHARIAH SHAW MOORE, late of Market-street, Sydney aforesaid, trading together in copartnership under the style or firm of "William Duncan and Company," as commission agents, it appears to us that the said William Duncan and Zacharish Shaw Moore are justly and truly indebted to the said Henry Prior Palser in the sum of sixty-two pounds eleven shillings and six-pence upon a judgment obtained against them,—being fifty-two pounds, eighteen shillings, for goods sold and delivered, and the sum of nine pounds thirteen shillings and sixpence for costs incurred in the prosecution of such suit,—and that, upon or about the sixteenth day of September last, the said William Duncan left his dwelling-house and place of business in Market-street, Sydney, aforesaid, and departed and absented himself therefrom, with intent to defeat and

A NEW SONG ALL SHOULD LEARN.—
Air—"I Norah M'Shane.
I've searched throughout Sydney a long time to find them,
And see all the wonders of COHEN and CO.;
Each other large house is a long way behind them,
And cannot pretend to make such a grand show.
They've every rich habit and style that's invented,
They've all that is rare in their Great Monster Hall,
They send from their warehouse each person contented
Who gives to H. COHEN and CO. once a call.

I find such a saving in all that I lay out
In buying new clothes from H. Cohen and Co.,
That scarcely a quarter the money I lay out
Which I used to spend ere to them I did go.
Then their clothes are so good, that they last me much longer
Than those which before to my lot did befall;
The cut is so stylish, the work so much stronger,
That the saving's immense at the GREAT CLOTHING HALL.

I suffer'd so much from the heat of last season
That I thought my good health would most certainly go,
But this year, I'm sure, to complain I've no reason,
For I've got some cool garments from COHEN and CO.
The light summer clothing which now they've imported
From China and India, made fit to please all,
In grasscloth, silks, lustres, the best kind assorted,
You'll see in rich clusters at COHEN'S Great Hall.

H. COHEN and CO'S trousers at all times excited the admiration of the very numerous patrons of the Monster Clothing Hall. The scientific principles upon which they are designed adjusts them with ease and grace to the form, while the materials, being of the very best quality, at once render them the most attractive and economic article of attire in the colony. H. COHEN and CO. offer, with full confidence as to results, the following unrivalled goods in

CONNUBIAL COLLOQUIES, No. 8.—(The performances at the Prince of Wales being in aid of the "MORRIS JACOBS' Statue Fund," Mrs. Topper and a distinguished party honour the theatre with their presence Mr. T, under the pleas of dolor digitatis, remains at home His old friend, Podger, drops in, and, in the course of conversation, Topper edifies Podger with the following orthodox remarks on things in general, and tailors in particular.)
"That's all very good, no doubt, Podger; but now listen to me, and remember, that if I make any remark that looks personal, you must not regard it as such, but understand it in a parliamentary sense, in the same way that our friends in Macquarie-street, when they apply the terms 'buffoon,' 'utterer of untruth,' and other similar pleasantries to each other, do so according to 'Cey's Practice,' and can thus enjoy the luxury of outraging every feeling of honour, because it is done in a 'parliamentary sense.' &c, Podgy, my boy, I'll trouble you for that peculiar old port—vintage 1851—and I'll give you a toast.—Here's reformation to your tailor, Podgy! How do I know he needs it? Why, my dear fellow, you carry the proof of it upon your back. Now, Podgy, on the honour of a gentleman, do you call that article a coat? You do; and you paid a good price for it? I've no doubt of it. That's always the case; inferiority and high prices are the Siamese Twins always united. What do I call it? Egad, there you bother me, for if it is not a cross between a monkey-jacket and a straight-waistcoat I don't know what it is. But, seriously, Podger, I wonder you don't study appearances more. How can you? Why, do as I do! go to the only tailors in Sydney—MORRIS JACOBS and CO.
"I tell you, Podger, that firm is one of the wonders of modern times! They have achieved an amount of success that is perfectly astounding! By what means? Why, by adhering to a system based upon the solid foundation of truth and integrity! No humbug with them, Podger, everything to inspire implicit confidence—excellence of material, beauty of workmanship, and elegance of cut, combined with prices within the reach of ALL, have secured for them the esteem and patronage of thousands! You will visit them, Podger; give me your hand, and believe me you will thank me for my advice. C me replenish, and let us drink to the health and prosperity of the world renowned MORRIS JACOBS and CO.
"Topper says, that Podger had just commenced 'Cheer Boys Cheer,' when the arrival of Mrs. T. and party stilled the tempest of harmony he was about to raise. The receipts for the 'Jacobs' Statue Fund' were £569 19s. 11d.!"

TROUSERS.
There's not an article in dress
More difficult to make,
And that has urged M. J. and Co.
Peculiar pains to take.
The human figure they consult,
In cutting TROUSERS out,
And what appears as the result—
A fit beyond a doubt.
Let all who study in their fit
Exactness, style, and ease,
Improve the fact, which all admit,
That none can equal these.

The Matilda sailed in company with the Daylight from New York, and bound for Sydney. The Samuel Glover was to leave the next day, also for this port.
The William Miskin touched at Twofold Bay on her passage up. She reports the Diligence and Flying Cloud, bound to Port Curtis, having put in there through stress of weather, and left again on Wednesday. The William Miskin is also bound for Port Curtis.
Mr. John E. Petley, on Tuesday, received a case of valuable instruments, as a present from His Royal Highness Prince Alfred. The present is accompanied by a letter from His Royal Highness, who refers to his recent cruise in the Black Eagle, and hopes that the instruments will be useful to Mr. Petley; and, amongst other matters, His Royal Highness states he has forwarded a knife for Truelove, the boatswain, as he had not forgotten that he lost Truelove's knife when they were out in a small boat.—Mitchell's Maritime Register, July 31st. [This gentleman is brother of Captain Petley, of the N. H. R. S. Paterson.]
The Clarendon, from Hokianga, has been off this port five days, with heavy westerly gales. She reports the Wanderer as having arrived from Melbourne, and to sail again on the 27th instant.
Novel Vessel.—A singularly constructed vessel is building in Dumbarton, for Mr. Curtis, of London, agent for the eel trade there. It is intended for floating on the Leven, and for preserving the eels alive till they are dispatched to the London market. Its length is 25 feet by 8 feet in breadth, and a space is allotted at one end for a small erection, fitted up with a bed, and other conveniences, for the use of the men who have the charge of it. This nondescript boat is made with a flat bottom, and is some three or four feet in depth; and is divided into a number of compartments, by partitions placed across from one side to the other. These are again subdivided by pieces of wood placed parallel with the vessel. The sides of the boat are pierced with holes to allow the water free ingress, and the eels are placed in the compartments, of which, for certain reasons, it is found more suitable to have a variety. A portion of both ends of the boat is made air and water tight, to make it float, and the compartments are also securely covered with wood. This is the first vessel of the kind seen in this quarter; but we understand they have been for some time used in London, and are found to answer their purpose.—Greenock Advertiser.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Sir,—An advertisement in this day's Herald proclaims that goods per the Australasian would be ready for delivery at Circular Quay, 12 (noon), but, instead of this being the case, not a single package was landed up to 6 p.m. Such detention of goods needs some explanation, and a better assurance as to the precise time that consignees may obtain their packages.
I am, Sir, yours most obediently,
J. S. NORRIS.

Court of Requests.—£30 Jurisdiction.—The Court will resume its sittings at ten o'clock this morning, with the trial of the case No. 45 on the list for the present month, Hilly v. Fowler. The assessors summoned for this day are Messrs. J. Gilbert, R. Gill, and J. B. Holdsworth.
Church of England.—The Rev. Mr. Leigh, who has been appointed to assist the Rev. W. Sowerby in this district, arrived in town from Sydney on Friday evening last. He preached at St. Saviour's on Sunday morning, and created a very favourable impression. He has a good command of language, some passages in his discourse rising quite to eloquence.—Goulburn Chronicle.
Quartz Crushing.—The machinery recently erected by Mr. Campbell, at Stoney Creek, is now in full operation. It consists of stampers and rollers, together with an iron bason, and is worked by steam power. It is likely to answer well the expectations of the owner, and is erected near permanent water, without which quartz crushing cannot be successfully carried out. The same spirited proprietor has another machine in operation some few miles from Red Bank, on the Sydney road from Bathurst, for crushing auriferous quartz, which has fully repaid all the outlay upon it, and given a very good margin of profit, considering that during the last season he was obliged to stop all operations in consequence of the want of water.—Bathurst Free Press.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1858.

In the Legislative Council, yesterday, messages were received from the Legislative Assembly—one with the Panama Route (Steam Postal Communication) Bill, which had been agreed to without amendment—and the Government Railways Bill, with some slight amendments, and inviting the concurrence of the Council therein.
Some additional papers were laid upon the table in reference to the railway accident.
The Chinese question, and that of the St. Philip's Parsonage, were deferred to next week.
The report of the select committee in reference to the District Courts Bill was adopted, and ordered to be sent to the Assembly with the bill. This report will be found in the report of proceedings.
The House went into committee for the resumption of the debate on the ballot, and the result on division at the conclusion of the debate was, that the ballot was adopted by a majority of 16 to 6. This took place at seven minutes past nine, when the House resumed and progress was reported, and the House immediately adjourned until Tuesday next.
Mr. Blake and Mr. Lord paired off on the ballot clauses, the former for, the latter against. Mr. Deas Thomson and Mr. Norton also paired off, the former for, and the latter against the ballot.

In the Legislative Assembly, yesterday, a message was received from his Excellency the Governor, enclosing a dispatch from the Secretary of State, acknowledging the congratulatory address of the Assembly to her Majesty on the marriage of the Princess Royal with the Prince of Prussia.
On the motion of Mr. Plunkett for a return of depositions and other papers connected with cases heard before the Mudgee Bench, and having reference to the conduct of Dr. Harris, a magistrate in that district, and that such documents be referred to the committee now enquiring into the state of the magistracy, considerable explanation as to the circumstances took place, but the Colonial Secretary consented to the production of the papers.
The motion of Mr. Deniehy, determining the jurisdiction and authority attaching to titular ecclesiastical distinctions in the various religious denominations, was withdrawn, and an amended notice placed on the paper in its stead.
The Trustees' and Directors' Frauds' Prevention Bill was read a third time and passed, and sent up to the Legislative Council.
On the order of the day for Mr. Robertson's motion relative to the South Australian annexation being called, the House was counted, and adjourned at five o'clock.

The District Courts Bill is now approaching the last stage. Whether it will finally pass will depend upon the temper of the Lower House. Many amendments have been suggested upon legal grounds, and perhaps none will be deemed such as to justify the postponement of the bill. Assuming that the measure is in itself desirable, the next great concern is to set it in motion. Its success will depend upon the persons to whom its working is intrusted. We can easily imagine that such a measure administered by doubtful persons would be the greatest curse a district could endure. The operation of these Courts must be to a great extent withdrawn from public opinion in its more independent and reliable forms. A gross and flagrant instance of wrong may indeed be repressed by the vigilance of the Parliament and the integrity of the Ministers. But the working of all courts of justice depends upon the character of those who preside. Wherever there is no direct and efficient surveillance they have a thousand ways of perverting justice—of degrading its administration—of favouring unrighteous pleas—of softening or aggravating the consequences of a suit. No one can have been frequently present in a court of justice without seeing this. However opposed these partialities may be to the highest duties of a presiding judge, there is a constant tendency, either through weakness or from fear, or from less creditable causes, to incline under sinister influence, and thus to jeopardise the justice of the country. There are some counsel, for instance, who are supposed from their powers of aggravation and annoyance, or from their subtlety and tact, to influence a court in favour or against their client, and thus to create special difficulties in the way of those who oppose them. We have been preserved from the worst consequences of these infirmities; first, by the high character and independent position of our judges, and then by the great importance of their courts, and thus their constant subjection to the scrutiny of a large uncontrollable and incorruptible public opinion.
In the country, however, this cannot be the case. The jurors will be taken from a limited circle. The Judges will have a permanent residence. All the local associations will grow up about them. The friendship or antipathies which so much warp the judgment will always assail them. The local press, from its narrow circulation and from the violence with which it is frequently conducted, will be scarcely regarded as an authentic medium of complaint. Thus, year after year, suspicions may gather about a Court. Its impartiality may be doubted—persons may be conscious that their cause has not been fairly adjudicated—and, in short, that there has been on the one side a sale, or on the other a denial and a perversion of justice. We are quite aware that all these objections arise from the state of country society and the inevitable disadvantage of all narrow spheres of action. The alternative evil has been the impossibility of getting justice at all—the fearful expense attendant upon suits conducted under the old forms—the crowding of the Supreme Court with business of trifling concernment, and thus postponing indefinitely business upon which the welfare of large establishments are dependent. It was absolutely necessary to do something, and public opinion seems to have generally supported the District Courts Bill, as, at most, a desirable experiment.
In looking to the appointment of new Judges, we must say that we have a deeper anxiety than that which we experience in reference to almost any other public appointments. The worst consequence we can suffer from an inefficient or corrupt officer in any other department is some general pecuniary loss. A time arrives when all the violations of honesty or duty bring their appropriate punishment; and the continual circulation of place and power, in a country always changing its functionaries actually makes it difficult for men to systematize bad principles of Government, or to conceal flagrant peculation and corruption. The very thing that has been necessary to make a judge independent has placed him beyond the power of ready correction. The presumption must be always in his favour. Yet if men be appointed who have been notoriously reckless as professional men, whose private honour is more than suspected, who outrage the decencies of society, whose circumstances are such as always to expose them to a pressure, if such men sustain the office of judges we fear that our courts will have but little influence for good.
We have several times seen in these colonies the disastrous spectacle of judges afraid to perform their duties, or strongly suspected of that fear in consequence of their own circumstances. We have seen them again and again sued for their debts, and escape the Insolvency Court, only because their creditors knew that the chances of payment were less in their official extinction. We have known instances of judges being completely under the power of some monetary and mercantile firms, so that their salaries have been forestalled by their debts, and they have maintained their establishments upon such stipends as their creditors in their generosity might permit them to appropriate. We do not say that there may not be cases in which judicial men may be involved in pecuniary difficulties without any blame of their own. We do not say that we are to enquire into the private circumstances of those who fill public offices, but we do say that it would be most disastrous were the persons to preside in these courts men of loose principles, desultory habits—incompetent as lawyers, and exposed by the pressure of their own affairs to perpetual embarrassment and contempt.
We make these remarks without any personal references whatever. Many rumours prevail with respect to intended appointments, but rumour is not always right. Some who have been mentioned are doubtless fully competent for the task. Others are such that nothing but the most reckless indifference on the part of Ministers to what is due to the colony—could ever place in a judicial position. We shall watch the course of affairs, and we earnestly hope that we are not to gather the permanent policy of the present Government from some of its early magisterial appointments.
In the nomination of Judges the Governor himself cannot be fully relieved from responsibility. As these are officers not removeable except with the concurrence of the three branches of the Legislature, it seems to be specially the duty of his Excellency to veto any nominations which, in his judgment, may be decidedly improper, not on party, but personal grounds. No doubt, the House can punish a Ministry by its removal, but it cannot afterwards undo the permanent mischief of unsuitable judicial appointments.
America has often been abused for her State judges. They have often been other than professional men. Sometimes grossly ignorant of law, of the rules of evidence, and profoundly indifferent to all but most limited views. Sometimes, however, great good sense and integrity may compensate for the lack of legal knowledge; but nothing will be worth a straw on the judgment seat if unaccompanied with personal honour and good fame.

The rush to the Fitzroy is over for the present, and we can calmly speculate now on the causes and characteristics of the extraordinary movement of population which we have seen take place. The wharves are no longer crowded with departing adventurers, men are no longer throwing up their situations and selling their properties, and vessels are no longer laid on for the golden river. Those that were so tardy in their movement as not to have committed themselves before the reaction set in, can congratulate themselves on their lucky escape, while those who were caught in the first whirl of the excitement have leisure now to ruminate sorrowfully on their imprudence. The terrible disasters which would have occurred, had not the mad migration been stopped in time, have been fortunately averted. There must have been many cases of individual distress and impoverishment, but there has been no wholesale starvation, no outbreak of disease, and no violation of social order. The great majority of those who set out never reached the diggings at all. Some who came on from Melbourne have stopped short at Sydney, others have been met on the high seas by the bad news, and have turned back, while others who reached Rockhampton found no inducement to go further. The distribution of an immense number of people over an unproductive territory has therefore been fortunately prevented, and thousands of the too easily allured adventurers have been restored to their homes with no worse results than the loss of their passage money.
When gold was first discovered in Australia, the wild enthusiasm and excitement was natural and partly excusable. It was a new thing, and the charms and miseries, the profits and losses, of a digger's life were then things unknown. But one would have thought that seven years' experience would have made almost every one familiar with these calculations—that the community would have become case-hardened against reputed discoveries—that even the opening of a prosperous gold-field would only cause a movement among regular miners, and that the mere rumour of a discovery would have had no perceptible effect upon the settled population.
But there was evidently some special charm about the Fitzroy gold-field which acted on the population with a magical effect. The willingness of the people to believe in wonderful discoveries that should stimulate the prosperity of the colony had, no doubt, something to do with it—"the wish was father to the thought." But three causes seem, principally, to have operated; first, that the spot was so easy of access that, in case of failure, retreat was easy (which has proved to be the case); secondly, that many were so unsatisfactorily employed that they were moveable on very slight provocation, and the excitement caused by their starting off being naturally infectious, the most impressible and incautious part of the population were drawn into the whirl; and thirdly, the rumour that the gold lay very near the surface, and was obtainable with but little labour. This last fact seems to have operated with special force on the diggers who have come from Ballaarat. That gold-field is the richest that the world has yet known, but latterly the labour and expense of extracting the precious metal has been very great. Deep sinking has yielded large returns, yet it has been also very exhausting. And when miners who have been accustomed to sink shafts of from one to five hundred feet deep heard that nuggets of a respectable size were to be turned up within a few feet of the surface, and at only a day's walk from the shipping place, the news was altogether too much for their philosophy. They deserted the windlass, and rushed to the ship.
In Victoria, even more than in New South Wales, the mobility of the population has been strikingly exhibited, and suggests grave reflections to the statesman. It was with great difficulty that hundreds who had made up their minds to go to Port Curtis could be induced to believe that there was no opening for them there at present. The absence of authentic news, even positive bad news, could not hold them back. The readiness of the miners to migrate was something alarming. Had the Northern gold-fields proved more extensive than they have yet shown themselves to be, there would have been no checking the rush. A little more success than was actually obtained, would have made all warnings useless. The departures from Melbourne would have been incessant—our own correspondent told us to prepare for two thousand a day. Such a sudden and immense migration would not only have made the task of government in the North extremely difficult, but would have acted with terrible effect in depreciating the value of property in Victoria. We have no desire to see the prosperity of this colony obtained simply at the expense of our neighbours—to populate our territory by depopulating theirs, and to grow rich by making them poor. Yet it is not to be concealed that Victoria has had a narrow escape from losing a most appreciable portion of its bone and sinew. The escort returns maintain their average, and the gold actually produced each week conclusively proves that the mines as yet show no signs of exhaustion. Yet hundreds and thousands of the diggers are so little attached to the spot, so little satisfied with their position, that they are ready to be off on the slightest inducement for a journey of a thousand miles to a tropical climate. Colonisation proper can hardly be said to have been satisfactorily carried out, where so few of the productive inhabitants are in no way bound to the soil. Some that came up from Melbourne have gone back again, but others are staying in this colony, preferring to try their chance on the hitherto undeveloped gold-fields that it unquestionably possesses. They are scattering abroad, some to the North, some to the South, and some to the West, and their united labours will doubtless tend to open up the treasures of the land. But we hope that whatever discoveries may be made, there will be no more wild rushes like that we have recently witnessed.
While Victorian diggers are thus coming across to prospect the coast range, our South Australian neighbours are kindly examining our territory in the far west. A sum of money has been voted by the Assembly to send a party to explore the Barrier ranges. The only reason for supposing that gold exists there, is the description given of the geology of the country by Sturt, and its declared resemblance with that of Bendigo. These Barrier ranges lie to the north-east of South Australia, just outside its boundary line, but between it and the river Darling, and, therefore, within the limits of this colony. But our shrewd neighbours calculate that if gold should be found there, all the traffic would naturally pour down the Darling and the Murray to Adelaide, and they would then have a similar reason for annexing that portion of territory that they have for taking a slice on the other side. Our Government will doubtless keep a watchful eye on the movement, as should gold be found there, the licenses and export duty will have to be sharply looked after.

Blight among the Cereals.—That insidious and all-prevailing pest, the aphis, has appeared in several portions in this district, and has attacked the growing cereal crops. Mr. Evan Evans, of Dapto, informs us that he has had a large quantity of English barley completely destroyed by this pestilence. Adjoining the barley is a wide area of growing wheat and oats, which have not yet been touched, but Mr. E. expects that will next fall a prey to the aphis. The barley destroyed was a splendid crop, and Mr. Evans had bestowed extraordinary pains on its sowing and subsequent culture. A paddock of fine barley, belonging to Mr. Armstrong, at Kembla Grange, has also been completely destroyed by the same enemy. We have heard of various other cases. Mr. Evans gives as a reason why the aphis first attacked the barley where there were other crops growing, that the barley is more juicy and sweeter than either wheat or oats, and he expects the oats to go next. He has also remarked that the English barley is preferred by this insect in its attacks. We were also informed by Mr. H. Waldron, of Spring Hill, a few weeks back, that he has a large area of wheat suffering from an attack of smut. What makes this more remarkable is, that the usual precautions were taken to clean the seed, smutty wheat had never been grown on the same ground before, and the site is one not at all calculated to induce the visitation—being high, dry, and exposed to wind and warmth. The only way to account for it is, that the smut has been carried by the wind from some other locality.—Illawarra Mercury.
Distribution of State Aid to Religion.—The motion of Mr. Chapman in the Assembly, that a fairer distribution of State Aid than now existed should be made amongst the different religious communities receiving it gave rise to a curious debate. Mr. Chapman's first resolution, which was alone submitted to the House, merely affirmed the fact that the present proportion of distribution was unfair, and that a new distribution, according to the number of denominations receiving it, should in future be adopted. It was curious to see how the assertion of this simple fact and proposed alteration were received and discussed by the House. Nearly every member admitted that the distribution was unjust, and that a better and fairer system was desirable,—but, from some unaccountable and latent impulse, nearly every man who spoke in favour of such a course voted against it! Every man spoke of State Aid as a doomed system, but few had the courage to advocate that during the period in which it must continue, before being constitutionally abolished, its distribution should be equitably adjusted to the numbers of the respective religious sects. The truth was, that the debate was treated from first to last as a sort of supplementary debate on the question of State Aid. Hence the perverse inconsistency between the arguments and the votes. It is evident that the subject is one which the Assembly dislikes. It is surrounded with difficulties which few men like to look fairly in the face,—so they prefer to leave the system even in an objectionable state, to do anything which might sanction the continuance of the grant. Nothing could be more temperate, clear, or unobjectionable than Mr. Chapman's explanation, on which he grounded his motion for redistribution.—Hobart Town Courier.
Blue Gum.—As blue gum seed is both scarce and costly, I think it should be publicly known that its propagation by slips is almost as infallible as willow cuttings. These, from the lateral shoots of a yearling seedling (seven or eight inches in length), if placed in a sheltered bed of fine damp loam, will strike quickly, and may be planted out at any time during the summer. There is thus a great saving of both time, trouble, and expense, and a very few plants will be sufficient to form a considerable nursery. The slips should be put out whilst they are still tender, and before they have had time to become woody, the crown always to be retained. Woody shoots from more advanced plants will not succeed. This is the result of trials I have made this season, and considering the constant care a seed bed requires, I think it is the most certain and satisfactory method of propagating this valuable tree.—Correspondent of the Lyttelton Times.

THE GOLD ESCORTS.

Mr. Deniehy.—We are requested by this gentleman to contradict the report copied from The Age, into our yesterday's issue, that he was about to remove from Sydney to Melbourne. Mr. Deniehy desires us to mention that the statement of The Age is entirely without foundation.
The Disappointed Diggers.—"There is a tide in the affairs of men, which taken at the flood leads on to fortune." So says the poet, and his saying is as true of nations as of men. There are chances and opportunities which occur now and then, sometimes unexpectedly, which wisely availed of, lead to most successful results. Such an opportunity seems now to present itself to this colony. Attracted by the hope of finding rich gold-fields in the north, a large population has been lately drawn to Sydney—not new chums ignorant of colonial life, and needing an apprenticeship to make them thoroughly efficient, but men who have already gained their colonial experience, and are used to all the toils and privations of a miner's life. It would have cost a good deal of money to have imported as many as have come here of their own accord. The question is shall they be induced to stay now that they are here, or shall they be allowed to leave without an effort being made to retain them? The colony possesses great undeveloped resources, needing only skilled labour, backed by capital, to turn them to account. Under the influence of this conviction, some gentlemen interested in the commercial prosperity of the city and the colony have been devising means to set the now idle miners to work. The movement is one that eminently deserves support. It is by such private associations that new fields of enterprise are to be opened up, more than by official interference. The recently issued gold regulations afford protection to labourers and capitalists, in working claims and in quartz-crushing operations, and the clumsy portions of those regulations are open to any modification that may be shewn to be necessary. There are three elements necessary to commercial prosperity, capital, labour, and undeveloped resources. We have, at this moment, in this colony, all three. It only requires that they should be brought into successful combination. And now is pre-eminently the time for a well-planned and energetic effort.
The Drama.—The tragedy of Brutus, as represented at the Prince of Wales' Theatre, on the evening of Monday last, was placed on the stage in a style highly creditable to the management. It is in parts like Brutus, where strength and vigour are essential to a successful embodiment, that Mr. Brooke so eminently excels. On Tuesday evening, the Bride of Lammermoor was performed to an excellent house. On the occasion of Mr. Brooke's benefit, on Thursday, Westland Marston's play of The Patrician's Daughter, and the laughable farce of Born to Good Luck, were performed. The theatre was densely crowded, and large numbers left the doors of the house unable to gain ingress to the interior of the building. At the conclusion of the play, Mr. Brooke, responding to the calls of the enthusiastic audience, appeared in front of the curtain, and briefly addressed the audience as follows:—Ladies and Gentlemen,—I feel myself in a most enviable position indeed. It is now nearly four years since I first had the pleasure of making your acquaintance. At that period, I was fortunate enough to gain your approbation; and, during the interim, I have been the recipient of much favour at your hands. And when I look around me, and behold the pleasant prospect—[A voice from the crowd in the pit, in sonorous accents, here cried out, "Blarney."] I assure you it is no blarney, and I feel that your presence here this evening, together with the encouragement I have received, is a guarantee to me that as time rolls on I have not decreased in your esteem. Since my arrival in these colonies I devoted myself assiduously to the arduous duties of my profession, and, like a schoolboy for the second time, yearn for the holidays. I shall now retire for a time in order to recruit. I will not say farewell, as I hope to have the honour of appearing before you, reinstated in health and vigour; and I trust that I may always merit the esteem and approbation which I hitherto have been successful in receiving from a Sydney audience." Mr. Brooke then left the stage amid a hurricane of plaudits and other manifestations indicative of a deeply rooted popularity. During the temporary absence of Mr. Brooke the management have prepared a series of novelties, both dramatic and musical, one of which—the Invisible Prince—is announced for this evening. The piece has been many weeks in rehearsal, and the services of Miss Jane Sara Flower, Miss Julia Mathews, and Mr. Winterbottom and his compact little orchestra, will be given with advantage to themselves, and with pleasure to the lovers of musical entertainments.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Sir,—Will you allow me to contradict so much as relates to me of the paragraph copied from the Age into your journal of this morning. I have no intention of settling in Melbourne.
Your obedient servant,
HENRY PARKES.
October 22nd.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Sir,—What are the Sydney merchants about? Here they have a source of thousands of pounds of profitable commerce brought to their doors, and they don't seem to know how to secure it. I speak of that splendid little army of diggers that now parade our streets, undecided what to do. Were these men placed in batches on our different gold-fields, does any one doubt they would soon develop what was to be had there? and that they would demonstrate what every one has all along asserted, namely, that, man for man, the gold-fields of New South Wales have proved more remunerative to the digger than those of Victoria; and it has been long said it is because we have not had the right sort of diggers that the thing has not been more plainly and generally made known. Now we have the right sort of men here, but we are letting them go back to Victoria or elsewhere, without the slightest effort on the part of Government, merchant, shopkeeper, or landowner to retain their services to develop the resources of the country, and yet each one of these classes is highly and vitally interested in the question.
I would suggest that the merchants call a meeting at once, at the Exchange, and see if they cannot raise a handsome subscription from among themselves, the property holders, and from the shopkeepers; such fund to be applied to send these stalwart fellows, free of expense, to the different gold-fields in proportions as such meeting may think fit.
Can any one doubt that if the owner of each house were to give six months' rent towards this fund, it would be money well laid out?
Can any one doubt that when these men tested the Western and other gold-fields that have been paying so well, they would not write to their friends in Victoria about them.
If the merchants, who are the proper persons to take this matter in hand, think well of such a meeting, two or three of them should meet on Saturday morning, and cause a placard to be posted at the Post Office, notifying to the diggers to suspend their departure, as such a meeting is about to be held.
Your obedient servant,
ERA.

THE ELECTRIC TEL

PARLIAMENT OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

FRIDAY, 22ND OCTOBER.

THE PRESIDENT took the chair at fourteen minutes past four p.m.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

The PRESIDENT informed the House that a message had been received from his Excellency the Governor-General, announcing that a despatch had been received from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State, acknowledging the receipt of a congratulatory address from the Legislative Council to her Majesty, on the marriage of the Princess Royal of England to the Prince of Prussia.

RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

The SOLICITOR-GENERAL laid documents on the table having reference to the railway accident, which were ordered to be printed.

Mr. WISE gave notice of his intention to ask the Soliciter-General whether the evidence which had been taken in reference to this accident had been taken on oath, or otherwise.

THE DISTRICT COURTS BILL.

The SOLICITOR-GENERAL brought up the report of the select committee appointed last night, in reference to the dissent of the House from certain amendments which had been made by the Assembly in the District Courts Bill, and moved that it be read at the table by the clerk.

The CHIEF JUSTICE seconded the motion.

Agreed to.

The report was read as follows :—

In answer to the message of the Legislative Assembly, dated 23rd September last, the Legislative Council begs (22nd October, 1858) to assign the following reasons for its disagreement to the amendment made by the Legislative Assembly in the District Courts Bill, which is numbered 2 in the said message, and also for proposing amendments upon the amendments made by the Legislative Assembly in the said bill, which are numbered 9, 13, and 26 in the said message, viz. :—

1. The Legislative Council disagrees to the amendments made by the Legislative Assembly, which proposes the omission of all the words in the 9th clause after the word "but," for several reasons, viz. :—

1. Because questions affecting titles to land and the validity of devises, bequests, and limitations under wills and settlements, involve the most difficult and abstruse problems which can be solved by legal learning, and require for their due solution a full discussion at the Bar, and a careful comparison by the Court of previous decisions.

2. Because such questions can be best disposed of by the Judge of the Supreme Court, having access to well-furnished law libraries, and conferring with their colleagues before they prepare their judgments.

3. Because a District Court Judge cannot be expected to dispose of such questions in a manner which will be satisfactory to the public, since much of his time will be spent in travel, and he can carry but few books with him, and will, on many occasions, be unassisted by professional advocates and will have no colleagues to consult.

4. Because, if a District Court Judge were to dispose of such questions, his judgment upon them would be final and conclusive between the parties, and those claiming under them in all actions in which the amount claimed shall not exceed £50, and such judgment might be pleaded by way of estoppel in any other action, however large might be the amount claimed therein, if the same title, or the validity of the same devise, bequest, or limitation were in issue.

5. Because the provisions of the clause as transmitted to the Legislative Assembly are in conformity with English legislation on the same subject, after an experience of ten years.

6. The Legislative Council proposes to omit the word "and" in the first amendment made by the Legislative Assembly in clause 25 as printed, and to substitute for it the words "or of," because although there are in this colony Courts of General Sessions, and Courts of Quarter Sessions, there exists no such Court as a Court of General and Quarter Sessions.

13. The Legislative Council propose to add in the new clause No. 26, after the words "Supreme Court" in the 5th and 7th lines of the clause, the words "of Sydney or Moreton Bay," and after the words "Supreme Court" at the end of the clause the words "of Sydney or Moreton Bay as the case may be" because it is left in doubt by the clause as it stood, whether its operation may not be confined to that portion of the colony which is within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court sitting at Sydney, and it is obviously desirable to extend the benefit of the provisions contained in the clause to the district of Moreton Bay.

The Legislative Council also proposes to omit the word "that" in the eighth line of the same clause, and to substitute for it the word "such," because this alteration would be rendered necessary by the adoption of the preceding amendments.

The Legislative Council also proposes to omit the words "Judge or Judges," in the ninth line of the same clause, and to substitute for them the words "person or persons," because the words proposed to be omitted refer to one class only of the persons designated in the antecedent portion of the clause.

The Legislative Council also proposes to omit the words "and purposes," in the tenth line of the same clause, because it is expedient that the persons holding temporary appointments under the provisions of the clause, should have power to do other judicial acts than those specified therein.

26. The Legislative Council proposes to add to the words inserted by the Legislative Assembly, at the end of the 101st clause, the word "and," such addition immediately preceding the words so inserted by the Legislative Assembly, because the word proposed to be added will connect the words so inserted with the former portion of the clause.

The SOLICITOR-GENERAL moved the adoption of the report.

Mr. LANG seconded the motion.

Agreed to.

GOVERNMENT RAILWAYS BILL.

A message was received from the Legislative Assembly, with the Government Railways Bill, in which the Assembly had made some amendments.

The consideration of these amendments was made an order of the day for Tuesday next.

TRUSTEES AND DIRECTORS FRAUDS BILL.

The above bill was received from the Assembly, which had agreed to it without amendment.

ST. PHILIP'S PARSONAGE BILL.

The committal of this bill was postponed until Tuesday next.

CHINESE IMMIGRATION.

The consideration of the report of the committee on the Chinese Immigration Bill, was postponed to Friday next.

ELECTORAL LAW AMENDMENT BILL.

The House resolved itself into committee upon this bill.

The question was put that the word "ballot" be struck out.

Mr. JONES said, he had risen last night with the idea that the debate would have closed last night; he wished to add a few words now. He condemned the open voting system as a most vicious one, leading to open bribery, corruption, drunkenness, and a variety of other evils. This was the consequence of open voting in England. He quoted instances in which enormous sums had been spent—in one case as much as £200,000. What was it spent in but bribery? He instanced also the case of a noble duke who had threatened to expel any of his tenants who would dare to vote against his candidate, and keep his land uncultivated rather than that those tenants should have them. There was no remedy for such evils but the ballot, and he could not imagine that any Legislature could by any possible means be justified in encouraging bribery, corruption, and drunkenness, and brawling, and all kinds of immorality, which they would do now if they continued the system of open voting. They all knew what the results of open voting were, but they did not know what would be the results of the ballot. He believed it would remedy all the evils, and he should vote for it. If it did not answer the purpose, they might return hereafter to the present system. The ballot, he contended, would be a protection for the weak and timid, who were now actually coerced to give their votes against their will, and they (the House) ought to take every means to buoy up the Constitution, and to protect all in the exercise of their franchise, which he considered a moral, almost a religious duty, and for the proper exercise of which each man was answerable to his own conscience. The hon. member concluded by stating that the present system was so corrupt, so full of evil, that he thought it the duty of the House to pass the present clause as it stood.

Mr. NORTON said that nothing had fallen from the hon. member opposite, to induce him to change his opinion, and that was against the ballot. He objected to the ballot, and what did they know of it?—they had little beside that of Victoria. It was said they had vote by ballot in America; but, although the voting there was by papers, it was still, in fact, open voting. They knew the evils there were in the present system, but they did not know those that would attend the ballot. Let them not rush on them to another system, simply because it was a new system. He had the greatest objection to rushing on new changes, simply because a rampant sister had introduced them. He denied that Victoria was to be taken as an example by this colony, and that he believed would be clearly shown in the history of Victoria that day ten years. He considered that the ballot was a question for some six or more years. In reference to Victoria, he alluded to a conversation he had had with a friend who had recently returned from Victoria, who informed him with respect to the ballot that there was one thing connected with it which might hereafter become a very serious evil, namely, the interference of the Roman Catholic clergy, who, he said, exercised an influence of which the people of New South Wales had no idea—an influence exercised in secret, and for the exercise of which the ballot would serve as another cloak. He thought that people should fearlessly express their opinions when called upon to do so. There might be as much corruption, drunkenness, lying, and every other evil that had been enumerated, under the ballot as under any other. He was not an enemy to reform, but he was an enemy to experiments, and especially at this early period of their time. The honorable member had spoken of drunkenness and other evils he had witnessed, but he would ask him whether those evils had characterised the elections in Sydney? He concluded by giving his support to the amendment.

Dr. DICKSON commenced by referring to the debate on this question last night, but for which, having already discussed the subject at some length on a previous occasion, he might have been contented to vote in silence. He congratulated his friends on the same side of the House as himself, on the admirable manner in which the cause of the ballot had been then sustained by his hon. friend Dr. Bland. The value of the advocacy with which he and the others who followed him had sustained the cause, was the more enhanced, because on this occasion they were certainly, to some extent, without the great advantage of that able leadership which they generally enjoyed. He was compelled, however, to come forward and speak, when he heard it gravely asked what countries had been benefited by the ballot. He answered triumphantly, Switzerland, Belgium, and France. In England, too, the ballot question, at present under the care of Mr. J. Berkeley, the member for Bristol, was now making creditable progress. Peace, law, and order had resulted from it in Switzerland; and equally beneficial had been its use in Belgium and in France. In the latter country, on a recent grave exigency, the ballot saved France from anarchy and bloodshed, where the want of it would have been fatal. It was not the fault of the people there if the man so elected by them had since set aside his obligations. His hon. friend Dr. A'Beckett had said that the ballot was a thing of expediency. He denied it. The ballot was a great principle—the very key of the whole mystery. It was not perhaps a natural right, but (to borrow a phrase used by Sir William Jones) it was a statutable right. He could hardly appreciate the value of the plan which his hon. friend Mr. Merewether had propounded last night. The only distinguishable feature in it appeared to be the keeping the state of the poll a secret on the day of the election—this was really a very poor substitute for the ballot. The hon. and learned member (Mr. Norton) had spoken against the ballot as likely to prove injurious to the development of an honourable personal courage, but he was of opinion that the use of the ballot would have no such tendency. Yet it was not fair to assume that personal courage, or "pluck," was a true criterion of the correctness of political opinions. He considered the contemptuous allusion of Mr. Isaacs, last night, to the poverty of a certain class of voters, as most unhandsome and uncalled for. If a man could only earn six shillings a week, the want of that small sum was a very serious matter to him, because it was his all. The middle classes—he meant more particularly the shopkeepers—suffered much from the present system, and would be much benefited by the ballot. The labourer, too, demanded its protection, although not perhaps to so great an extent. The prejudice of some hon. gentlemen against the ballot, and other political improvements, was something more becoming to antiquaries than legislators. The hon. member then urged the argument that the ballot would prevent drunkenness at elections—an argument to which he attached great weight, as did his honorable and learned friend the Chief Justice. He had heard with pain and surprise the manner in which the hon. and learned member (Mr. Norton) had spoken of Victoria—that glorious and rising colony, which stood foremost amongst the colonies of England. He denied that the clergymen, either of England or Rome, used an undue influence in elections there, any more than they did in New South Wales. As to the ballot leading to bribery—the insinuation was perfectly preposterous. It was the only cure which had been discovered, and votes would not, of course, be saleable, when it could never be known whether what was paid for was really sold or not. As regarded the argument derived from the use of the ballot by clubs, and in public companies—that had not been spoken to at all, but had evidently—to use a Parliamentary phrase—been blinked. No apathy either resulted from the ballot, unless the absence of riot and an undim nished but more peaceful interest in elections deserved that name. The honorable member then proceeded to comment upon the speech of Mr. Isaacs, which he characterised as delivered as much in favour of the ballot as against it, and alluded to the way in which, within his memory, people used to be hunted up to vote for great landlords in Ireland. He then animadverted upon the passages quoted by Mr. Isaacs from Sydney Smith, which, as a tissue of sarcasm, were unworthy of notice—the opinions of a man who knew positively nothing of the ballot. The ballot worked well in America, and worked well in Victoria, and wherever else it had been tried; and although it could not, of course, prevent solicitation of votes, it was certainly not a system productive of lies. As to the argument that the ballot did not exist in England, it deserved no consideration whatever; there, of course, the aristocracy opposed it, as they did many other great reforms; and, moreover, no analogy whatever existed between this new colony and England. It was absurd to attempt to draw any conclusions from such a supposed analogy, and to do so was to keep a drag chain upon the progress of this colony.

Mr. Justice THERRY said, that in considering the question of the ballot there was one emphatic fact worthy of their serious attention,—that the bill, with that principle embodied in it, had been sent to them from the Assembly, it was admitted, with a large majority—the majority had been so great as three to one in favour of it. He took it, therefore, that any man who opposed the ballot, so sanctioned by the representatives of the people, incurred a serious and very grave responsibility. He confessed, for himself, that this fact had great weight with him, and he was not inclined to dissent from the principles so supported. This was an argument for the consideration of the honorable members who had not formed decided opinions upon the subject; and, as some honorable member had already said, that they were indifferent whether the ballot was conceded or not, this argument ought to operate powerfully upon them—that the bill was sent to them by the representatives of the people, sanctioned by a large majority. For his own part he had watched the operations of the ballot in the Australian colonies hitherto, and, as far as his observation went, he found that it worked well and favourably. He had seen in the colony of Victoria, in which he happened to have resided for twelve months, and with the prominent men of which he was still acquainted—that the result of the ballot there was, that all the leading men were returned to the Legislature under the ballot. It was clear that if there had been open voting, and as free a choice as could be designed or desired, the very identical candidates would probably have been returned that had been returned by the ballot. In fact, members of the late Ministry, and the present Ministry were returned. He had watched with particular interest, a recent case in which the parties engaged were known to him, and in which one gentleman of large fortune, and who had distinguished himself by his advocacy of the ballot, but who, when he sought the suffrages of the people under the ballot was worsted in the fight and ousted by a small majority. But by whom had he been defeated? By one of the leading men of the colony, and who had rendered important local services to the City of Melbourne, and to the district for which he was returned. Such a man was a powerful opponent, and it was no discredit to Mr. Nicholson to be defeated by him. Therefore he had no hesitation in saying that so far as his observation went of the working of the ballot in Victoria and South Australia, it appeared to him to work well, and, as far as experience furnished a guide for judgment, it was strongly in favour of that principle. (Hear, hear.) A good deal had been said about the cost of carrying on elections, but the modes of carrying them on were so variable, it was impossible to take them as a ground for a positive decision in the matter. He could not indeed conceive why the cost should be so great as had been shadowed forth by a previous speaker. What necessity was there for incurring great expense in these matters? or what necessity was there for quoting instances of such, because if expense was needlessly incurred, a reform in that respect might be easily effected. Then again, when private feelings gave way to a free and unbiassed exercise of the franchise, when men gave an independent and unimpassioned declaration in favour of the candidate to whom, in his judgment, he inclined, where would be the necessity, or whence would arise an occasion for violence or disturbance? It appeared to him that voting by ballot was the most orderly, the most satisfactory, and, in fact, the justest mode of proceeding. Under the open system of voting, as practised in England, sometimes enormous and most ridiculous expenses were incurred, but at the same time it would be seen that contested elections were by no means in some instances an expensive affair. (The hon. and learned gentleman then quoted passages in illustration of his argument, showing two instances wherein one gentleman contested the representation of Bath at a cost of £4, while another gentleman contested the representation of another country constituency at the enormous expense of £100,000.) Therefore, it was seen that the costs attending elections were variable, and without system. They knew that in the colony contested elections cost sometimes a great deal, while at others they cost hardly anything. He could not see why a system carrying on elections proposed to be particularly free from bribery and corruption, and all other undue influences, should be an expensive affair. The honorable member, Mr. Norton, shadowed forth some misapprehensions entertained by him from imagination, or from something communicated to him on the subject, about clerical influences under the proposed system. Now, for his part, he apprehended that these influences would be diminished by vote by ballot. He apprehended that, under the present system, many might be induced to vote in the presence of, or under the influence of a clergyman of his denomination—no matter of what persuasion, and in the presence of members of their own creed, not for the man whom their judgment recommended, but for the favourite of some person or party possessing some sway or control over his opinions; but when men were secured from those influences by the ballot, they would vote very differently. They would vote, not for the person dictated to them, but for him whom, in their judgment, and on their conscience, they believed most fitted for the position. This would be the result of the ballot, when voters were secured from the undue influences and improper solicitations of clergymen or laymen. (Hear, hear.) If they turned to Victoria they would find there that the ballot worked well. In the case of Mr. O'Shanassy, the present head of the Victorian Ministry, it could not be said that any such influence aided them at the late election by ballot. They found that while under the old system he was returned at the head of the poll, under the ballot he was returned at the bottom. He must therefore say, that whatever opinions he had formerly entertained unfavourable to the ballot, those unfavourable opinions had been corrected by experience, and by such results as he had an opportunity of judging by. He did not see why they should take the example of England in every respect. There were many things in which they were not analogous to England. They had not here, as they had in England, a powerful landlord class, anxious and determined to maintain their privileges, and who would maintain them so long as they had the power—for to them and to their interests the ballot would be detrimental and injurious. The landlord class in England was a powerful class; they made laws—in fact, in former times they were almost the sole law-makers—and they made them, too, to their own advantage. Therefore, it was that, so long as the landlords in England possessed the power now enjoyed by them, the principle of the ballot would not make any progress. In this respect there was no analogy between the state of things here and in England. Even here great inconvenience and much unpleasantness had been experienced through the system of open voting in bygone times. Of this fact he could illustrate many instances where bickerings and hostilities had been engendered at elections, and it was to remove the cause of these things in future that the principle of the ballot was so desirable. (Hear, hear.) [The honorable and learned gentleman read a very eloquent passage from the writings of Edmund Burke, descriptive of the penalties which in Ireland the people were subjected to by the system of open voting, whenever they dared to vote against the wishes of the landlords.] This (he continued) reminded him of the very untenable and inconsistent amendment proposed by Mr. Merewether. "By all means," that honorable member said, "let them vote in secret, but let care be taken that afterwards the votes be made known. Let the voter support the candidate he preferred, but afterwards let him be exposed to the world, and then it would be found whether a man kept his word or not." What concern was it of the world's to know whether a man kept his word or not? or what, he would ask, was the use of secret voting, if the voting was afterwards to be exposed and the protection of the ballot taken away? The honorable member (Mr. Merewether) proceeded on the argument that, if a man made a promise he must be bound by it, and if not he was to be exposed to the vengeance of those against whom he voted. It was contended this was right, and it was said "let the rascal be known." But who was the rascal? The man, in his (Mr. T.'s) opinion, who extorted the promise, and who might have the power, and who would certainly have the inclination to crush the man whose promise he had extorted. If, then, the ballot was to be adopted at all, let it be adopted in its integrity, and without an amendment, which would make it a cruel mockery. He believed that a promise spontaneously given—a promise which fully flowed from the heart, would be faithfully kept under the action of the ballot as any promise made now—but as to promises wrung by fear, and extorted by corruption, they ought not to be kept, because they belonged to that class of engagements of whose inchoate depravity the profligate performance was the infamous consummation. (Hear, hear.) In opposition to the amendment of his hon. friend he would quote the authority of the great orator of antiquity, 2000 years ago, Demosthenes, who bequeathed his wisdom and his eloquence for the enlightenment of posterity. (Hear, hear.) "If," says Demosthenes in his speech on the false embassy, addressing an assembly of five hundred judges who were to vote by ballot, "if there be any man here sufficiently unfortunate to have been betrayed into a corrupt engagement to vote against his conscience and his country, let him bear in mind that to the fulfilment of that promise he is not bound—that those with whom he has entered into that profligate undertaking will have no cognizance of its performance, but that there is a divinity above us who will take cognizance of his thoughts, and know whether he shall have fulfilled that duty to his country which is paramount to every other obligation;—your vote is secret, you have nothing to apprehend, for safety is secured to you by the wisest regulation which your lawgivers ever yet laid down." (Hear, hear.)

Dr. MITCHELL observed that the chief argument advanced in favour of the ballot was, that in England the lower classes were controlled by the landlords, whilst here it was admitted that the lower orders controlled themselves. Now, if such was the case, he could see no reason for resorting to secret voting in a colony like this, however much it might be requisite in the mother country. He believed that it would not be essentially secret, and that in its operation it would lead, more than anything else, to the debasement of public morality. He entirely differed from the arguments of the hon. and learned Judge who had just spoken, with reference to the performance of corrupt promises. He contended that whatever the nature of the promises might be, the persons making them were bound to fulfil them. The hon. member concluded by expressing his intention to vote for the amendment.

Mr. WISE spoke in favour of the bill as it stood, for the following, among other reasons :—It had been ascertained that the public voice was almost unanimously in favour of vote by ballot, and in another place it had been carried by a very large majority. If there was no other reason than this, he should be disposed to support the clause as it stood, rather than endanger the further progress of the bill, which he considered of the greatest importance. He would do so, irrespective of the real principle at issue, because upon that point he confessed he had not quite made up his mind. He had been perfectly satisfied that they could incur no harm by adopting the principle of vote by ballot, not for the protection of such voters as those who composed either the Assembly or the Legislative Council, but for the protection of the weak and the poor, whose circumstances might prevent them, under the present system, from giving a conscientious vote. He confessed that the ballot, in political matters, was comparatively untried, and therefore susceptible of doubt as to its actual utility; but they knew that it had been frequently tried in private and other institutions with advantage and success, and, such being the case, he could see no reason why the same mode of voting should not be introduced into the political system of this country. He could not forget, moreover, that the ballot clauses had been carried in the Assembly by a very large majority, and as the members of that body were the parties chiefly interested, and as he could see no cogent reasons why vote by ballot should not have a trial, he felt the more disposed to vote for the motion then before the House.

Mr. HOLDEN remarked that although he had supported vote by ballot in municipal institutions, he was not inclined to vote for its introduction into our political institutions, on the ground, chiefly, that it was calculated to open up numerous avenues to bribery and corruption. The hon. member, in support of his arguments, quoted lengthily from a work describing the evils which arose from the progress of vote by ballot in America.

Mr. A'BECKETT replied briefly, responding to the arguments of several hon. members who had spoken in the course of the debate. As for the use of the ballot in clubs, &c., he thought it was just as objectionable in that case as he felt convinced it was in political matters. He could never understand the morality involved in that practice which permitted one man to place a black ball against another's name, and yet not have the courage to tell him so. The hon. member, in the course of his observations, quoted Sir James Nightingale to show that, even in private clubs, the utmost effect of the ballot was to prevent quarrels, but not disclosure or publicity; and that the same consequence must necessarily follow in the exercise of the political suffrage. He wished it to be distinctly understood that he did not oppose the ballot on political grounds, but on grounds of a much higher character, namely, that it tended to destroy all moral energy and virtuous resolution.

Mr. BROADHURST intended to vote against the ballot, although he was anxious to offer an argument in favour of it. (Laughter.) It was generally understood that the honorable and learned Solicitor-General would vote with him were it not that he had been entrusted with the charge of the bill; and, therefore, if it were only to relieve the honorable and learned gentleman of his difficulty, he thought they should at once bring the ballot to bear on the settlement of this question. (Laughter.)

Mr. LUTWYCHE said, that after what had fallen from Mr. Isaacs, and having been appealed to in reference to the matter, he had made some enquiries concerning the expense of the ballot. At the first blush of the comparison one must see that the expense of booths, rooms, returning officers, and their deputies, and poll clerks must be common to both modes of voting. How then did the difference of expense arise in reference to vote by ballot as distinguished from open voting? He took it that it was principally, if not entirely, from this cause—that there was the expense of printing ballot papers, and providing ballot boxes. It appeared to him that that was the only expense which could fairly be charged to the ballot. And now he would ask, could any one believe that so great an expense as £20,000 have been incurred in Victoria on an election, in consequence of the operation of the ballot? He had, however, pretty good authority for stating that the whole of the expense of a general election in Victoria, did range between the sums of £40,000 and £50,000. The whole expenses of a general election in South Australia, however, were covered by £10,000. He understood that the expense in Victoria and Van Diemen's Land (where also it was very large), was chiefly incurred by advertising the lists of electors in the newspapers. That he believed was a true explanation of the statement made. When, therefore, Mr. Isaacs relied upon such statements as he made the other evening, and made an estimate of £100,000, as the expense of carrying out the ballot in this colony, he hoped the House would not assent to his view, but lean to the plainer and more probable statement which he (Mr. Lutwyche) had laid before the Council.

The amendment was then put and negatived on the following division :—

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

FRIDAY.

THE SPEAKER took the chair at twenty-eight minutes past three o'clock.

MESSAGES.

The SPEAKER reported to the House a message from his Excellency the Governor-General, transmitting a copy of a despatch from the Secretary for the Colonies, acknowledging the receipt of the congratulatory address to her Majesty on the occasion of the marriage of the Princess Royal with the Prince Frederick William of Prussia.

On the motion of Mr. COWPER, it was ordered that the despatch be printed.

It was also ordered, on the motion of Mr. COWPER, that a message be transmitted to the Legislative Council, notifying that the Assembly had agreed to amendments in the Government Railway Bill, and intimating that one amendment had been made upon the Council's amendments.

PROPOSED ANNEXATION OF A PORTION OF NEW SOUTH WALES TERRITORY TO SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

Mr. ROBERTSON, without previous notice, moved that the plan which, together with papers relative to the proposed annexation, had been laid upon the table of the House, be lithographed. The hon. member subsequently postponed, until Tuesday next, the motion, of which he had given notice, to the effect that the Assembly should agree to a resolution stating that there was no valid objection to the annexation in question.

THE STATE OF THE MAGISTRACY.

Mr. PLUNKETT moved, "That an address be presented to the Governor-General, requesting his Excellency to cause to be laid upon the table of this House the following documents, viz.—Depositions taken in the Police Court of Mudgee, in the cases of—1, Turvey v. Caplin; 2, Caplin v. Inder; 3, Inder v. Harris; 4, Regina v. Turvey; 5, also, a receipt from Turvey to Inder; 6, receipt from Mills (for Harris) to Caplin; 7, letter of the Attorney-General to Bench of Mudgee, respecting the above mentioned cases; 8, the letters of Dr. Harris to the Colonial Secretary, respecting the above-mentioned cases; 9, affidavit of J. W. Devereaux, verifying certain facts; 10, all other papers and communications relating to these cases; with a view to the said documents, when produced, being referred to the select committee now inquiring into the state of the magistracy." The hon. and learned member briefly stated the circumstances to which the documents moved for had reference. A person named Turvey exchanged a horse with a person named Caplin, and subsequently Caplin transferred his interest in the horse to a person named Inder. Caplin afterwards claimed the horse on the ground that he had lost the horse which had been taken in exchange. Dr. Harris was present, and through a Mr. Mills, bought the horse from Caplin, who claimed it. But it appeared that the price paid was not, according to competent judges of the value of the horse, above one-half of what it was worth. The first two cases mentioned in the motion were brought before the bench of magistrates at Mudgee, under the Act for the Prevention of Cattle Stealing, and Harris, whose property the horse was, was alleged to have sat upon and to have adjudicated in his own case. The bench decided that, for one purpose, the case did not come within the Act, but that, for another purpose it was within the Act. A warrant was issued for the apprehension of Turvey, when he surrendered himself, and produced the receipts in order to satisfy the bench that the exchange had been made. The consequence was that an action was brought against Dr. Harris, and at the Bathurst Circuit Court a decision with damages was given against him. The Government were informed of that matter some time previous, and although it was intimated that such proceedings were not creditable to the bench, yet no investigation took place, and no notice was taken of the case by the Executive. Under these circumstances, he (Mr. Plunkett) thought it right, especially for the sake of obtaining purity in the administration of justice, and to let magistrates know that they must not adjudicate in their own cases, or do any acts which would not bear the light when brought before other tribunals—that this matter should be brought before the committee appointed to enquire into the state of the magistracy. He might also state that there was a report abroad, and the Government might be aware of it, that the fact that the Executive had not taken notice of this matter, was to be attributed to some influence possessed by an hon. member of that House, some one, however, who was not privy to the acts complained of, but who gave support to the Government. That made it more necessary that the Government should strictly enquire into the case, so that the Executive might have an opportunity of clearing up the matter, and of easing the public mind as to the prevailing rumours.

Mr. COWPER said he had no objection to the production of the papers. But as the hon. member had entered into a statement, he, Mr. Cowper, might also be allowed to state what appeared to be the case. The Mudgee bench complained of Dr. Harris, J.P., having sat and adjudicated in a case in which he was interested. It appears a horse bred by one Caplin came by some means or other into the hands of one Turvey (the latter says by exchange, which the former denies, who sold him to a man named "Inder." Inder took he horse to Mudgee for sale, when he was claimed and taken possession of by Caplin on 7th October last, and sold to a Mr. Mills for Dr. Harris. Caplin on the 8th October, took proceedings against Inder and on the 14th Dr. Harris and the Police Magistrate awarded the horse to Caplin. Inder thereupon all back upon Turvey for his money, but he bench dismissed the case. He then summoned Dr. Harris for having the horse in his possession, and the evidence taken in the matter having been submitted to the Attorney-General, that officer advised that the case against Dr. Harris should be dismissed. With respect to the complaint against Dr. Harris, the Attorney-General, however, intimated, that if Dr. Harris purchased the horse either by himself or an agent from Caplin, on the 7th October, and afterwards sat and adjudicated in the case Caplin v. Inder, his conduct was highly irregular and improper—and if brought formally before the Government and substantiated, it would, he thought, be the duty of the Executive to take further steps in the matter. Dr. Harris stated to the bench, on 30th December, that when he purchased the horse he was under the impression that he bought from Mills alone, and that it was only within the last two days he heard that the horse had been obtained from Caplin, solely on his (Dr. H.'s) account. Caplin swears—"I sold the horse to John Mills for £23, for Dr. Harris." Mills swears—"I bought the horse for Dr. Harris." As regards the date of purchase, the matter is doubtful. It would appear, from Mills' deposition, that it was affected on the 7th October, for, after stating what he had seen of the dispute between Inder and Caplin, and his offer to purchase the horse, he goes on to swear that "just before sundown Caplin and others asked him to help them down with the horse; that Caplin took him out of Wallace's stable and delivered him to me (Mills), when I paid for it." Caplin swears that he does not recollect the exact date of sale; whilst the evidence of another, Hayes, shews that the horse was sent to Mills, on the 7th October. The receipt given by Caplin to Mills for the money is, however, dated 27th October. Dr. Harris was called upon to state his account of the transaction, which was this: Dr. Harris denies that he purchased the horse from Caplin. With regard to his having joined the Police Magistrate in awarding the horse to Caplin, he says he merely signed the depositions, and that the case was adjudicated upon by the Police Magistrate, without the slightest reference having been made to him, or his opinion in the matter having been asked. He accuses Captain Brown and Mr. A. Cox with being actuated by vindictive feelings, arising on the part of the former in consequence of his having entertained a complaint of one Thomas; that Captain Brown had committed an assault, and set a dog upon him, by which his face and hands were severely cut and disfigured. Dr. Harris states that his inadvertence in signing the depositions has been urged upon with a view to carry out Captain's Brown's threat, that he would find means to have him struck off the Commission. But the result was, that the Government having considered Dr. Harris' explanation, saw no reason to believe that he acted corruptly or with any improper motive, and as he distinctly denied the imputation the case did not appear to be one calling for action on the part of the Government. The hon. member read two letters from Dr. Harris, explanatory of his conduct in the above circumstances, and also with regard to a disagreement with Mr. Brown, the police magistrate. In concession, he said he saw no objection why the papers should not be produced, and referred to the select committee sitting upon the state of the magistracy.

Mr. DALEY said he had been requested to move for these papers, but as he had been engaged as advocate on the trial at the Bathurst Circuit Court, he had conceived it would be much better for some other hon. member to undertake the motion. He might be allowed to say that the statement just given was not quite consistent with the facts. The question that would be raised upon these paper was, whether Dr. Harris at the time that he adjudicated upon the case, was aware that he was acting as a magistrate when deciding a case of disputed property, which property was his own. The evidence showed—and it was not denied by Dr. Harris—that on the 7th of October this horse was the property of Inder, who brought it to Mudgee for sale; and that on the same day Caplin set up a property in the horse, and denied Inder's right to take the horse from him. Mills purchased the horse for Dr. Harris, but whether he was aware of the circumstances which occurred on that day, did not transpire; yet, three days from that time Harris bought the horse from Mills. After several days had expired (on the 18th of the same month) Dr. Harris sat as a magistrate, affixed his name to the depositions, took part in the deliberations of the bench, and awarded the horse to Caplin. It was thus clear that he was sitting in judgment upon his own case. If Caplin did not own the horse, Inder could have taken it out of the possession of Harris. Mr. Brown was the police magistrate at Mudgee, and it was absolutely necessary that some one else should be there to hear such an examination. The defence set up by Inder was that, at least eight days before that time, Dr. Harris was aware of the whole circumstances of the case, for he had purchased the horse from Mills. But that was not the whole case; Dr. Harris put in a receipt purporting to be from Caplin to Inder, with reference to the transaction between them, which receipt was dated the 28th of October, or ten days after the adjudication of the matter, and twenty-one days after the sale had been proved, as in evidence. Thus a fraud between Caplin and Mills appeared to have been committed. The only motive for such a transaction must have been for placing it before Dr. Harris when he adjudicated as magistrate; but the only inference could be that the receipt was given to shew that the transaction between Mills and Caplin was subsequent to the trial. It must, therefore, be admitted as clearly proved that Dr. Harris must have been aware of the circumstances; and considering that there was a fraud upon the face of the receipt there was obviously a case requiring the intervention of the Government. He might add that great difficulty had been experienced by the Court in obtaining the depositions from the Colonial Secretary, and they were only given up after a subpœna had been issued for the hon. member to attend at the Bathurst Circuit Court.

Mr. FORSTER said the circumstances of this case had also been placed before him, and he had given a careful consideration to the case. He need not say any more than that his perusal of the documents led him to concur with the hon. members who had previously spoken, that a presumption existed of very irregular conduct having been practised by Dr. Harris in his capacity of magistrate. There was besides a strong suspicion that the Executive Government had not treated the matter, as they ought to have done. They had, to some extent, suppressed inquiry into the case. The document which had been laid before him (Mr. Forster) was signed by a police magistrate and another magistrate of the district; and it was evident that the police magistrate had made grossly false charges against him. One of them ought to be dismissed, for if there was no foundation for the charges a grave offence had been committed by one; while, if the charges were true, at least an equally serious offence had been committed by the other; and in either case the Government were called upon to act in the matter. He need only say further, that he hoped the case would be referred to the select committee.

Mr. PLUNKETT, in reply, stated that the last speaker had plainly shown that the Government had not acted so promptly as they should have done; for, upon the very face of Harris's letter, there was sufficient to justify an inquiry into both the cases of himself and Brown. They charged each other with improper conduct, and the neglect or omission of the Government to make inquiry, showed a want of proper respect for the purity of the administration of justice, and the absence of that sense of propriety which ought to exist among the magistracy. He had thought that the statements made to him were overcharged, but it appeared that instead of such being the case, they were rather undercharged, when compared with the statement made by the hon. member for Cumberland Boroughs. It would appear that Mr. Harris not only sat upon the case, but that it was at his instance that the property was decided to belong to Inder, though vested in himself. There could be little surprise, therefore, as to the rumours which were abroad. The whole of the bench must feel that respect for justice was lessened by the disgraceful appointments lately made; and the circumstance that a magistrate had been screened by the head of the Government was quite sufficient to show that the patronage of the magistracy, which ought to be carried out with such high integrity, was prostituted for political purposes. He did hope that the committee now sitting would do its duty with regard to such cases; but he might also add that, in his own place, now the matter had assumed such an aspect, he would not allow it to lapse should not a proper report be made.

Mr. COWPER: This gentleman was not appointed by the present Government.

Mr. PLUNKETT: I alluded to late appointments.

After a few remarks from Mr. ARNOLD and Mr. JONES, who desired that the House should be informed of the name of the member alluded to by the hon. member for the North Riding, the motion was put and agreed to.

ECCLESIASTICAL TITLES.

Mr. DENIEHY withdrew the following motion, and gave notice of his intention to put it in an amended form :—"1. That there being no special form of religion or Church established by law in this territory, and therefore no dominant or State Church, the Bishops of the Church of England have only, like the Bishops of the Church of Rome, and all other heads of Christian denominations whatsoever, jurisdiction in spiritual matters within their own churches and denominations, and no farther. 2. That any titles or designations derived from the names of localities, and by such bishops or heads of denominations assumed, do no more than point out the territorial limits within which their respective spiritual jurisdictions are exercised. 3. That it is therefore strictly in conformity with the entire equality of all denominations of Christians in the territory of New South Wales that there should exist Bishops of the Church of England and Bishops of the Church of Rome in the said territory, with precisely the same designations and exercising jurisdiction within exactly the same limits. 4. That the foregoing resolutions be embodied in an address and presented to his Excellency the Governor-General."

PETITIONS.

The following petitions were ordered to be printed: —Petition of James Pegg, presented by Mr. Parkes on the 18th August last. Petition of certain members of the Scots' Church, Sydney, presented by Mr. Robertson on the 19th instant.

SEIZURE OF THE BRIG FREAK.

Mr. THORNTON (in the absence of Mr. Williamson) moved, "That the papers relating to the alleged seizure of the brig Freak, laid on the table of this House on the 16th ultimo, be referred to the select committee now sitting on the Customs Department."

Motion put and agreed to.

TRUSTEES' AND DIRECTORS' FRAUD PREVENTION BILL.

On the motion of Mr. COWPER, this bill was read a third time, passed, and ordered to be transmitted to the Legislative Council with a message notifying that it was returned without amendment.

The House adjourned at five minutes past five o'clock until three o'clock on Tuesday next.

MR. CHILDLETT'S SACRED CONCERT.—The concert of sacred music given on Thursday night, by Mr. Chislett, was not so well attended as it deserved to be. The pieces were well chosen, and well executed; several voices were of great sweetness as well as compass. The parts were well distinguished and kept. We hope that entertainments of this kind will be more common and better appreciated, and that these singing classes will sometimes afford, by their combination, a musical treat such as are now annually given in the larger towns of England, where hundreds join in chorus.

APPOINTMENTS.—The following appointments were notified in yesterday's Government Gazette: Arthur Viner, Esq., to be a magistrate of the territory and its dependencies, also police magistrate at Rockhampton

LAW.

SUPREME COURT.—Friday.

SITTINGS FOR THE TRIAL OF CAUSES.

JURY COURT.

Before Mr. Justice Dickinson and a jury of four.

EMERY V. SHARP.

This was an action of ejectment by a lessor against a lessee, based upon an alleged forfeiture of the tenancy for breach of a covenant to repair.

The Attorney-General and Mr. Cary appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Isaacs and Mr. Faucett for the defendant.

The trial of this case had not concluded when the Court rose.

BANCO COURT.

Before Mr. Justice Therry, and a jury of four.

BERKELMAN V. DEAN AND ANOTHER.

This was an action for money had and received. The plaintiff claimed £350 for the sale by the defendants, on his account, of a steam engine. The defendants denied the debt.

Mr. Dalley and Mr. Windeyer appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Wise for the defendants.

The plaintiff was a partner in the late insolvent firm of Berkelman and Bate, millers. Both the plaintiff and Bate swore positively that the defendants had, prior to the insolvency, been instructed to sell the steam engine as the property of Berkelman individually, and not of the firm. It was admitted however, that there was no mention of this alleged claim in the schedule of Berkelman, and that in the schedule filed by the firm the defendants were mentioned as creditors to the extent of nearly £50. On the part of the defendants, it was stated, that the firm of Berkelman and Bate being indebted to the former, and a pressure being made for payment, the steam engine was sent to be sold on account. The amount realised had been carried to the credit of the firm, and the balance admitted to be due from Berkelman and Bate to the defendants had been made up by taking into account the money realised by the sale of this engine.

The jury found a verdict for the defendants.

THE NEWCASTLE COAL AND COPPER COMPANY V. WRIGHT.

This was an action for the value of a cargo of coal. There were several pleas upon the record, but a letter from the defendant was placed in evidence, wherein the claim of the plaintiffs was admitted. A verdict for £126 was therefore found for the plaintiffs.

Mr. Broadhurst, Q.C., and Mr. Stephen appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Isaacs for the defendant.

Several undefended and consent cases were also disposed of.

BUSINESS FOR THIS DAY.

BANCO COURT.—Sittings as in Banco. (Insolvency Jurisdiction.)—Motions Generally.—Rule Nisi: Gordon v. Oxley and others. Special Cases: The Queen v. Maguire; the Queen v. Murray.

JURY COURT.—Emery v. Sharp, part heard; Sharp v. Emery, D'Arcy v. Rochester, Roberts v. Belcher, Coman v. Cape, M'Mahon v. Fowler.

INSOLVENCY COURT.

FRIDAY.

Before the Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Estates.

In the estate of William A. Leer, a special meeting. One debt was proved.

In the estate of John Garsed, an adjourned second meeting, and special for examination. One debt was proved, and insolvent was further examined. The meeting adjourned until Monday.

SURRENDERS.

William Henry Fishburn, of Piper-street, Bathurst, licensed victualler. Liabilities, £657 1s. 2d. Assets: value of personal property, £370; outstanding debts, £180 8s.; total, £550 8s. Deficit, £106 13s. 2d. Mr. Wilson, official assignee.

George Ward, of Petersham, publican. Liabilities, £568 13s. Assets: value of personal property, £53; outstanding debts, £23 11s.; total, £76 11s. Deficit, £492 2s. Mr. Mackenzie, official assignee.

MEETINGS OF CREDITORS.

Monday, October 25.—Thomas B. Goldfinch, first, half-past 10. John Garsed, adjourned examination, half-past 10. John Mackie, special for examination, half-past 2.

Tuesday, 26.—Henry Fisher, special for proof of debts, half-past 10. James Simpson, third, 11. Lawless and Co., adjourned examination, 11. Alfred Levien, John Owen Glanham, Alexander Smith, Alexander Lyle Pattison, William Jerrall, certificates, 12.

Wednesday, 27.—Henry E. Pain, adjourned single, half-past 10. George F. Rossiter, third, 11. Henry J. Byrnes, single, half-past 11. Ralph Curry, deceased, single, half-past 12. Henry J. Bate, single, 1. Sylvester Byrne, single, half-past 2. John W. Orpen, first, 3. Thomas Sinclair, adjourned second, 2.

Thursday, 28.—James Cook, special for proof of debts, half-past 10. Andrew Williamson, single, 11. William F. Molesworth, single, half-past 11. Bernard F. Hughes, second 12. Frederick Barden, first, 1. William Tibbey, single, half-past 1. James and Charles Beaver, first, 2. Charles P. Pritchard, single, half-past 2.

Friday, 29.—John Melly, third, 11. Thomas Delohery, single, 12. Alfred Sykes, adjourned second, and for examination, 12. Thomas Lawless and Co., third, half-past 12. Richard J. Lee, third, half-past 1. John W. Orpen, second, half past 2.

COURT OF REQUESTS.—£30 JURISDICTION.

FRIDAY.

WADE V WHITESIDE.—This was an action for the recovery of a sum of money lent, and to regain possession of a brooch. Defendant deposited brooch in court, and pleaded set off. The evidence, however, did not sustain the plea, and the court found a verdict for plaintiff, £6 14s., ordering brooch to be given up to plaintiff. Attorney for plaintiff, Mr Newbon; for the defendant, Mr. S. Brown.

ARGENT V. ATKINSON AND OTHERS.—This was an action to recover payment for services rendered by plaintiff under an agreement of service to Messrs. Atkinson, Wrench, and Company. It was urged by the learned advocate for the plaintiff that the defendants had, by a negotiation into which the had entered with plaintiff for the cancellation of the above agreement, virtually admitted the existence of that agreement as against them. The plaintiff gave evidence that he never had been discharged, and had good reason to consider himself still in the service of defendant; so much so, that he had been prevented hitherto from engaging elsewhere. Cross-examination elicited the admission that plaintiff had, two or three times, refused to go to the office of defendants, not considering himself bound to attend there in the manner desired, especially as he had been taken off the performance of what was obviously his duty under the agreement above mentioned. Additional evidence was adduced to show that the services of a third party had been, to a certain extent, accepted by defendant Atkinson, with a view to an amicable settlement of the dispute, in the course of which Atkinson had signified his willingness to agree to pay Argent £56, if Argent would forego his claims under the agreement; but, when Argent had been brought to agree to such an arrangement, Atkinson had nevertheless changed his mind, and expressed himself determined to let matters take their course. The defence was that, as long ago as August last, plaintiff had been actually dismissed by defendant, and therefore had no such claim as was declared to have accrued under the agreement in question. Plaintiff had, by his own act, accepted the dismissal, and therefore could not support the claim now made. His Honor summed up, and pointed out that the question for consideration was, whether the plaintiff's conduct under the agreement had justified the supposed dismissal as such. If no breach had taken place upon which the "suspension" was legally founded, the plaintiff was clearly entitled to a verdict. The court found a verdict for the plaintiff in £24; and by consent a verdict was recorded between the same parties in another suit, under the same agreement. Attorney for the plaintiff, Mr. Holroyd; for the defendants, Mr. S. Brown.

GARVILLE V. LOUND AND ANOTHER.—This was an action to recover the sum of £16, being due, as alleged, by defendants to plaintiff for work done as an accountant. Defendant Lound pleaded never indebted, and that the claim made had been satisfied already. The work done was the preparation of a balance-sheet, or rather—as it seemed—the settling and determining the form of a balance-sheet to be prepared and laid before their creditors, with a view to some composition being made with them. The plaintiff stated that he had prepared several balance-sheets for the occasion, although not the one used by defendant Lound. Defendant wholly denied that any such particular services as plaintiff particularized had either been rendered or required. The Court found a verdict for the defendant. The attorney for the plaintiff was Mr. Newbon; and the attorney for the defendant Mr. James.

GANNON V. CHARLOW.—This was an action for the recovery of £13, balance remaining due on account rendered. The case for the plaintiff was fully substantiated, both by the evidence of the plaintiff and another party, and by documentary evidence afforded in a receipt produced in Court by defendant. The Court found a verdict for the plaintiff, £13. The attorney for the plaintiff was Mr. S. Brown.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

FRIDAY.

Before Mr. Forbes, Mr. E. S. Hill, Mr. R. Hill, and Mr. G. Smith.

Fourteen drunkards were fined 10s. each; or, in case of non-payment, to be imprisoned one day.

John Rose, an habitual drunkard, found, near midnight, lying in a verandah in Cleveland-street, a bottle of the much-loved liquor by his side, was sentenced to be imprisoned fourteen days as an idle and disorderly person—having, it was alleged, no fixed abode, his children being in the poor-house, and his wife, no one knows where.

Thomas Mason was brought before the Bench by sergeant M'Makin, who deposed that about five o'clock this morning he saw him (defendant), in Darling-street, in a state of all but nudity, his legs and arms covered with blood; as soon as he saw witness he set up a terrific screaming, and ran about four hundred yards, then suddenly stopped, turned about, and coolly walked towards him. He (witness) took him into custody on suspicion of being of unsound mind, and washed the blood from his limbs. Dr. Rutter, police surgeon, deposed that between 6 and 7 o'clock he was sent for, and on arrival at the station house saw the prisoner; on his right hand found a very severe wound; he is in bad health, and his intellects seem to be somewhat unsettled, though he could not say that he is actually insane; he requires treatment, and restraint will be beneficial. To give sureties to be of good behaviour fourteen days, or to be imprisoned for that term.

Mary Ann Smith, Mary Ann Cooper, John Andrews, Henry Gayler, and Henry Jackson (the two defendants last named being not more than fifteen years of age) were charged with, and found guilty of, having, in a brothel in Durand's Alley, kept by Smith, made use of obscene language in so loud a tone of voice that passers by on the outside could hear it, were severally sentenced to pay 40s., or to be imprisoned one month.

Ann Harris, an idle and disorderly person, just out of gaol, found loitering in the streets at a late hour of the night, having neither abode nor lawful avocation, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

James Cardwell was brought before the Bench by inspector Quirk, charged with having assaulted, by throwing a brickbat at, one Richard Miffin, inflicting a wound on the back of the head, which, at the time prosecutor gave defendant into custody, was bleeding profusely; defendant was very violent, and bit in two places the sergeant who attempted to apprehend him, and he (Mr. Quirk) was compelled to knock him down and handcuff him before he could take him into custody. Mr. Quirk, in answer to questions put to him, said that defendant's fence was inadequate and insecure, the gate being almost invariably open; that it was next to an impossibility to drive sheep along the Parramatta road without some of them going upon his land, and that he lived by impounding cattle and sheep from his paddock. Richard Miffin, who described himself as a "gut-boy" in the employ of a carcase bucher in Sussex-street, deposed that between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning he was driving a lot of from 80 to 90 sheep, along Parramatta Road towards Sydney, when some of them were caused by dogs to run off the road through a three-rail fence into a paddock and before he could prevent it were followed by the rest; he went in to drive them back, when defendant came up to him, and in a very violent manner refused to allow him—he would "shove them into pound;" defendant abused him, collared and shook him, and afterwards threw a brick at him, which struck him at the back of the head, and knocked him down; he gave him no provocation beyond asking for permission to drive back the sheep; went for a constable, and gave him into custody. On cross-examination, he said that, ben defendant threw the brick, they were not more than six or seven feet apart, but a fence was between them; he saw the missile coming, and tried to hold it, or he would have received the blow on his forehead, and he would have been "settled;" he did take up a sheep's head to throw at defendant's dog, but drive them back from the sheep, but did not throw it; he did not throw it, nor intend to throw it, at defendant, and it had been for some time out of his hand when defendant threw the brick at him; twenty persons, at least, were present, and saw all that took place. John Stone corroborated the last statement as to the circumstances of the assault but was not sufficiently near to hear a word of whatever conversation took place between the parties. The Bench found defendant guilty, and sentenced him to pay a penalty of £3, or to be imprisoned one month.

Lewis Alexander and Charles Firman, omnibus drivers, were severally found guilty of furiously driving their vehicles in George-street, to the common danger of other persons then and there being. From the evidence of the constable, Condick, it appeared that the defendants were racing one against the other, and were driving at the rate of fifteen miles an hour. Each defendant was fined 20s. and costs.

Several persons were fined for infractions of the Police Act, by allowing building materials to remain on the public ways, unenclosed by a board, and were fined 5s. each.

Four convictions were had, under the Sewerage Act, of persons allowing the contents of their waterclosets to overflow and cause a nuisance. A penalty of 10s. was imposed in each case.

Abraham J. Levy, publican, was found guilty of having kept open his house for the purpose of selling liquor on Sunday last, and was fined 40s. and costs.

Johan Reitz was found guilty of having assaulted Walter Beames, and was sentenced to pay a penalty of 10s.

WATER POLICE COURT.

FRIDAY.

Before the Water Police Magistrate, Mr. G. Eliott, and Mr. W. S. Doloitte.

Daniel Brown, convicted of disobedience of lawful commands on board the R. M. S. S. Emeu, was sentenced to one week's imprisonment, with hard labour.

Maria Matthews was fined 20s., with costs of professional prosecution, for having used insulting language towards Catherine Finlay, and 5s. and costs for a similar offence towards Patrick Finlay.

John Perks was fined 10s. for disorderly conduct in George-street, and Cecilia Robertson, who was found drunk in Kent street, was fined 10s.; in default of payment, each to be imprisoned for twenty-four hours.

Robert Dart, a tinsmith, residing in Parramatta-street, was charged by John Stirling, Chief Inspector of Distilleries, with having unlawfully sold a still. Mr. Brenan for the prosecution, and Mr. Redman for the defence. The prosecution was initiated on the 10th of August last, and the deposi ions made by the defendant in the case of Stirling v. Williams being tendered by Mr. Brenan, the Bench refused to admit the same in evidence in the present case, as well as oral testimony of what defendant admitted on that occasion, as tending to criminate himself. The case was then adjourned in order to give prosecutor time to apply for a writ of mandamus. The writ having been granted the case was continued, and defendant was convicted after his own depositions in the case of Stirling v. Williams had been put in as evidence against him. Fined £5, and ordered to pay 4s. 6d. costs of Court, and £2 2s. professional costs of prosecution; in default to be imprisoned for three months.

FATAL DRAY ACCIDENT.—Yesterday, shortly after mid-day, a striking instance of the uncertainty of human life occurred in Hunter-street. Samuel Cheatham, a man employed by the drayman of Messrs. Gilchrist, Watt, and Co., was engaged carting paper to the Herald Office, and had just discharged his load in O'Connell-street, when, on turning the horse sharp round towards Hunter-street, the animal is supposed to have taken fright, for he made a sudden start, which, by the quickness of the movement, overturned the dray. At this time the unfortunate man, who still held the horse's head, was tripped by the reins catching his feet, fell heavily, and was dragged along some little distance. Assistance was instantly rendered by a medical gentleman who happened to be close at hand, and some other parties who were witnesses of the sad event, which was but the work of a moment. The poor fellow was beyond the reach of human aid, however, for, when lifted up, he only gave one or two convulsive gasps, as if in the last agonies of death, and all was over. What renders this melancholy event all the more painful is, that deceased has left a widow and five children in very straitened circumstances.

RAVAGES OF THE APHIS AT GERINGONG.—Mr. M. Hindmarsh, J.P., called at our office on Monday last, and informed us that he had had nine acres of barley completely destroyed by the aphis. The crop consisted of three distinct kinds of barley, viz:—Skinless, English, and Cape, and the ravages of the insect were more severe on the first, and on the others as named. In the same enclosure he has wheat and oats, which have not yet been subjected to the destructive and irresistible onslaught of this peculiar pest. The appearance of the injured crops is very marked, so distinct indeed, that the difference between it and the untouched wheat and oats is visible from Mount Pleasant, a distance of one and a-half mile.—Illawarra Mercury.

THE NEW CLIP.—Several drays laden with wool of the new clip have passed through Goulburn on their way to Sydney during the past few days.

TASMANIA.

WE have papers from Launceston to the 14th instant.

The Launceston Examiner states that there are, at the present time, two educational bills before a select committee of the Legislative Assembly, one of which provides for the establishment of a Tasmanian Council of Education, to consist of fifteen members, to be nominated in the first instance by the Governor with the advice of the Executive Council: said body to have power to confer the degree of Associate of Arts upon all students who have passed a satisfactory examination in such subjects as the council from time to time appoints. Annual examinations for the degree to be held; names of students competing to be published. Eight Tasmanian scholarships are to be established, open to youth who have previously passed a satisfactory examination for the before mentioned degree; and such scholarships are to be tenable in the United Kingdom, for the purpose of enabling students obtaining them to become members of some University in England, Scotland, or Ireland. Two scholarships to be awarded in 1861, and two in every succeeding year. Each scholarship to be of the annual value of £200, charged upon the general revenue. All youths above the age of sixteen and under the age of twenty years, who have been resident in the colony for five years, and who have taken the degree of Associate of Arts, to be qualified as candidates for the scholarships, which are to be tenable for four years.

THE BUSHRANGERS.—The coroner's jury which sat to inquire into the circumstances attending the death of Thornton, the companion of "Wingy," has decided that Thornton died from gunshot and bayonet wounds given him by constables M'Ivor and Shaw, and that there was no evidence to attach blame to the constables for not taking him alive. Daniel Stewart, alias "Wingy," gave evidence, and said Bradley the shepherd had harboured them about eighteen months, and that on the night of the affray they were all drinking together in the hut.

UNPRODUCTIVE PENAL SERVITUDE.—The other evening, Mr. Allison, when introducing his motion into the Assembly of Tasmania for opening up to public occupation 140,000 acres of land on Tasman's Peninsula, exposed very clearly the absurd system (copied from Imperial models) of maintaining convicts in idleness. He said that he had been recently at the Peninsula on an excursion, and he found the penal establishment, planted on a few acres of land near Small Bay, one of the loveliest spots in creation, but denied to the use of those who desired to be useful to their fellow men. The whole penal establishment was in a very small compass, and he thought it a pity that all the beautiful land of the Peninsula should be shut up from useful settlers, who desired to make homes, because there were a few prisoners there. There were about 600 able-bodied prisoners, as he understood, but amongst all those he did not see above twenty pairs of sawyers doing anything to earn their own living, and a gang or two of the unemployed to carry in wood; for the remainder the able superintendent could not find anything better for them to do than beautifying the pans and kettles, &c., some merely polishing brass, others cutting out weeds with knives, and numbers engaged in the latter useless employment. He had said to Mr. Boyd that all this was very bad, and Mr. Boyd admitted that one of the greatest difficulties he had to contend with was to find sufficient means of employment to keep the men out of mischief. Thinking then that it would be much better if those men, instead of being left without useful occupation, if possible, should be set to some useful work, it suggested itself to him that they should be set to work to build a wall to wall themselves in, so that they might not annoy the colonists, and then the Peninsula, he thought, could be safely opened up. Each of these men cost the colony annually £33 10s., and he was not aware that anything scarcely had been done to make their labour reproductive.

FLINDER'S ISLAND A PENAL SETTLEMENT.—A proposal has been made to the President of the Legislative Council, by Mr. Peter Roberts, for the removal of the penal settlement from Port Arthur. Addressing that functionary, Mr. Roberts remarks:—"It has become absolutely necessary that it should be removed, and we ought not to hesitate to solicit the British Government to remove the offenders originally transported to this island to Swan River; because the convicts of the whole of the British dominions were formerly sent here, and, I suppose, there can be no more objection to send the men who are now undergoing punishment at Port Arthur—who were transported to this colony—than there was to send such men to this island. With respect to Maria Island, I contend it is a place totally unfit for the reception of offenders, because I believe that during the neap tides the men can walk through water thence to this island, and at other times they can get over by making supporters of rushes and small wood. I therefore draw attention to the capabilities of Flinder's Island, where they could be kept without probability of escape. That island has a plentiful supply of cattle and wild pigs, the property of this Government, or of Capt. in Smith; of course the latter would gladly receive a fair remuneration for his cattle and pigs; and I believe there is land enough, so that every man might dig sufficient land to produce wheat enough for a supply of flour for the use of the Government there. The telegraph will shortly be laid down near to Flinder's Island; a communication could therefore be easily effected daily with the Government, so that there would be no fear of any outbreak, without instant telegrams per electric telegraph."

THE ELECTORAL BILL.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

SIR,—I was very much pleased with a letter signed "Mentor," which appeared in your issue of Thursday. The plan he suggests, for each elector to have "a ticket or certificate," is one of the utility of which I have been long convinced, and though its operation might not, as your correspondent supposes, suit some individuals of the "Benbow tribe"—that particular species of reformers being, in my opinion, very great humbugs—I am quite satisfied that it would meet the views and receive the support of all really liberal men, and those who are desirous of securing purity of election. I would have the ticket given to the electors, as your correspondent suggests, and I have given below a form which, I think, might be acted upon and found useful. The first represents the blank form, having merely the name of the electoral district, the number on the roll, the year in which the enrolment is made, the words "citizen right" and "collector" printed upon it, leaving spaces for the elector's name and residence to be written in, as shewn in the second form. On presenting himself at the poll, the elector shews his ticket to the returning officer, who, on being satisfied that all is right, stamps upon the face of it, with a stamp provided for the purpose, the date on which the election is held and the place where the vote is recorded. He then returns it to the elector, who proceeds to the balloting-room to record his vote. This plan would effectually prevent personation, as no man would be allowed to vote unless he produced his "ticket or certificate," nor could he poll twice, or at more than one polling place, as its second production, with the stamp upon it, would at once shew that it had been already used. Such a plan, I submit, would be simple, inexpensive, and ineffectual, and would give as much security as I think can be given in the due and proper exercise of the greatest privilege with which a citizen is entrusted. The bill now before the Legislature, with all the amendments it has received, is still very defective; but we can scarcely expect so important a measure to be perfected at once; but I am quite sure that if some such scheme as I have here shadowed forth were introduced into it, a great deal would be done towards making it work honestly and giving fair play to all parties. In addition to the suggestions of your correspondent, I would beg to add that on the loss of a ticket, the elector should be entitled to receive a duplicate only, after a declaration made by him before a police magistrate or two justices of the peace, residing in the district for which the vote is claimed.

ENCROACHMENT ON THE DOMAIN.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald

SIR,—The explanation made last night by the Secretary for Lands and Public Works regarding the alleged refusal of the use of the Gardens to the Horticultural Society will, I suppose, be deemed by most people to be quite satisfactory. Although the necessity of paying for admission to the gardens on days of flower shows was never, I believe, accounted a grievance, yet in this matter Mr. Robertson has shown a laudable desire to protect the public in the enjoyment of their usual privileges. His promptness, also, in bringing the facts before the Assembly is to be commended. Will Mr. Robertson now be kind enough to explain on what grounds he has permitted a far more serious encroachment on public rights, in the case of the New Baths? A close paling fence has been run along the side of the road for about 300 yards, enclosing several acres of ground, and cutting off one of the most beautiful views obtainable from that portion of the Domain drive. This obnoxious work of art was executed, I suppose, on the pretence that public decency required it. I do not believe that public decency required anything of the sort; but, supposing that it did, it would have been equally well satisfied with a fence of less than half the length, and placed nearer to the baths, so as to screen them without disfiguring the road or impeding the view over the harbour. I know that many share with me a feeling of deep distaste towards this most unnecessary and injurious obstruction; and I have heard energetic wishes expressed that some patriotic individual would set fire to it and have it reduced to ashes! If the evil must be endured (though I trust rather that it will be cured), I hope Mr. Secretary Robertson will at least give us the satisfaction of knowing what induced him to consent to such a piece of work.

Yours, &c.,
Z.

October 20.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

SIR,—Any person reading the extract from the London Literary Gazette of 10th July last, which you this day publish, might, if he had no previous acquaintance with the subject, imagine that I had committed a mistake in giving the name of Zygomaturus to the very extraordinary skull in our Australian Museum, since it appears to have been previously named Nototherium by Professor Owen. There can be no doubt that my learned friend has the means of determining the identity of Nototherium and Zygomaturus, as he has at hand the original specimens on which the former genus was founded; but the error, if any, is his, not mine, as will appear from the following extract of a letter which I have just received from him, dated British Museum, 21st July last:—

"I have now a very curious circumstance to tell you. Observing in a sale catalogue of a miscellaneous collection at Stevens' auction room, some fossil bones, I found that they were Australian mammals—an almost entire skull and lower jaw of Diprotodon, a lower jaw, showing the bottom of the short incisive alveolus of Nototherium Mitchellii, a portion of the upper jaw of ditto, many bones and vertebræ of Diprotodon. The whole were secured and knocked down at low prices for the Museum. Comparing the great skull and lower jaw with a drawing of Boyd's specimen, made at Sydney by the late Sir Thomas Mitchell, I became strongly impressed with the conviction that we must possess the original. I wrote to Stevens for the history of the fossils. He replied, 'They were collected in Australia by the late B. Boyd, Esq.' Farther history he had none to give! How they have been rescued from their supposed watery grave I know not; but here they are,—and the casts kindly transmitted to us by the Trustees of the Sydney Museum establish the fact beyond doubt. The skull has suffered some injury, but not of essential moment. Besides the mammalian bones, there were vertebræ of a land lizard, allied to your great lace-lizard (Hydrosaurus of Wagler), but indicating an animal of between twenty or thirty feet in length. I have no doubt the cast of the lower jaw of your Zygomaturus will prove to be the original in Boyd's collection, which we have so unexpectedly acquired. This original is identical in its characters to the minutest markings of the enamel with the specimen in the museum, College of Surgeons, on which the Nototherium Mitchellii was founded; only the symphysis in that specimen was broken just short of the incisive alveolus and the first little molar. As the incisive alveolus of Diprotodon extended further back, beneath the homologue of the first molar in place, which now proves to be the second, in the original Nototherium I supposed the incisor to be absent, at least as a large tusk, or ever growing tooth. Your entire cranium of Zygomaturus shews by the extended base of attachment of the fore part of the Zygoma (absolutely more extended than in Diprotodon), that the portion of the upper jaw and molar teeth with the fore part of the Zygoma in Boyd's series is of the same animal, and those upper molars certainly belong to the same species as the lower jaw of Nototherium. What we have now, therefore, learnt is the true dental formula of that genus, and the most strange conformation of its cranium."

The passages above in italics are those in which Professor Owen acknowledges his mistake; the italics, however, are mine.

If reference be made to the Illustrated Catalogue of fossil bones in the museum of the London College of Surgeons (a book in the Australian Subscription Library), it will be found that, many years ago, the Professor therein described a genus of extinct Marsupials under the name of Nototherium. On account of its having no incisors, as he supposed, he called the first, or typical species, Nototherium inerme; and he called the second species Nototherium Mitchellii, on account of half an under jaw having been sent to him by the late Sir Thomas Mitchell. In fact all that he knew of his genus was two fragments of under jaws, and on them he framed its only characteristic, namely, the dental formula, which was as follows:—

Incisors—	canines—	premolars—	molars—
0	0	0	8

As, therefore, the Nototherium was thus recorded without incisors to lower jaw, by so distinguished an observer, and one species even called, on that account, "inerme," I, of course, considered that an animal must be generically different from Nototherium when the dental formula of the former was, obviously, as follows:—

6	0	2	8
Incisors —	Canines —	Premolars —	Molars —
2	0	2	8

Thence I named the skull in the Australian Museum Zygomaturus, on account of the singular process of the Zygoma; and deemed it to be a new genus, not only on account of the presence of incisors, but on that of the presence of premolars—all of which teeth are stated by Owen in his original description as not existing in Nototherium. I may here mention that, in like manner, I first gave the true dental formula of Owen's genus, Diprotodon, in a letter to the Sydney Morning Herald which was published many years ago, at the time the Boyd collection of bones (mentioned in the above letter of Professor Owen) was exhibited in Sydney by a Mr. Turner, who had brought it from Darling Downs. In the same letter to the Herald, the date of which I forget, except that it was published a few days previous to the last departure of Leichhardt from Sydney, I recollect having expressly mentioned that, among the fossils then on exhibition by Mr. Turner, there were vertebræ of a gigantic reptile, nearly thirty feet long, which was allied, not to crocodiles, but to the still existing lizard, vulgarly, in this colony, called Iguana, which is the Hydrosaurus of Wagler, and the varanus varius of other herpetologists. There are casts of these vertebræ in our Museum, which were made at my desire from the specimens purchased by the late Mr. Boyd.

I have little more to say on the subject of these fossils except that, in our Museum, may be seen two fragments of under jaws, which I have assigned respectively to the Nototherium inerme and Nototherium Mitchellii, not, indeed, on account of the incisors being deficient, but because in both specimens the premolar is wanting—a character of Owen's original genus, Nototherium. I am, however, disposed to lay little stress on this character, as it may possibly be merely indicative of the age of the individual animal. At least this is the way in which Professor Owen has accounted to me in a former letter for that error in his original character of the genus Diprotodon, to which I have alluded above.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
W. S. MACLEAY.

BOTANIC GARDENS—EXPLANATION.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

SIR,—Perceiving in your report of proceedings in the Legislative Assembly, contained in the Herald of today, the statement of the hon. the Secretary for Lands and Public Works, concerning his refusal to grant the unconditional use of the Botanic Gardens, for the purpose of holding the spring exhibition of the Australian Horticultural and Agricultural Society, on Wednesday and Thursday, 13th and 14th instant; in justice to the Council and myself, I deem some further explanation necessary, as from what Mr. Robertson has stated, it is made to appear, that the Society was not refused the unrestricted use of the Gardens.

On the 9th of September I wrote to the Secretary of Lands and Works, requesting the use of the Botanic Gardens for the purpose of holding the spring exhibition, on the days above stated, and receiving no reply up to the 6*th instant* (nearly one month), I wrote again, calling attention to my previous letter. In the meantime, the exhibition committee had prepared the prize schedule, which, together with cards of admission, &c., had been printed. I had delayed issuing the cards until an answer to my first letter should have been received, there being, at the date of my second letter, but one week to the day fixed for holding the exhibition, during which, had the answer been favourable, there would have been scarcely time to make the necessary preparations.

On the date of my second letter, I received a reply, granting the use of the Gardens, upon a condition which the Society could not consent to. I then consulted with Mr. Deane, the honorary secretary, when we at once determined upon calling a special meeting of the Council for Friday, 8th ultimo. The next morning I waited on Mr. Robertson, and he informed me that the Government had so many applications for the use of the Gardens, that it had come to the determination of denying their unconditional use, as it prevented the general public from the enjoyment of them, and said that he would have no objections to the Society having a small portion of the Lower Garden hurdled off. I said that such an arrangement would not do for the Society, as many of the articles would have to be exhibited on the open ground. Mr. Robertson then said I had better see Mr. Moore and ascertain if some arrangement could not be made to accommodate both parties, requesting me to let him know the result, and gave me a letter to Mr. Moore. I went to the gardens the same afternoon, accompanied by one of the Council, but could not see Mr. Moore. We, however, saw Mr. Kidd, the superintendent, and mentioned the matter to him, and stated that the only way I saw was to hurdle off one half of the garden from the sun-dial to the gate. I left the note with Mr. Kidd. The next morning Mr. Moore called at the office of the Society, and said that he could not see how the Society could do without the garden, and that he would be happy to assist the Society with the arrangements. When speaking to him about hurdling off the one half the Gardens, I said we should be obliged to have a great number of police to keep the people from getting over the hurdles; he agreed with me, remarking that it would be very awkward (and I beg leave here to state that no arrangements were made by me with Mr. Moore as stated in his letter to Mr. Robertson, as I had not the power to make those arrangements without reference to the Council). I told Mr. Moore I would state to the Council which was to meet that (Friday) evening, his willingness to assist all he could in the matter. When the Council met I laid the whole of the correspondence before it, and stated the conversation that had taken place with Mr. Robertson and Mr. Moore. The Council, at which there were fourteen members present, considered that on account of the delay that had taken place it would be impossible to make the requisite arrangements for the exhibition to take place on the days appointed, as most of the floral exhibits would be unfit for exhibition on a future day. The Council felt bound in justice to the florists to abandon the exhibition, and for its own justification to state the cause.

In reference to the account given of my conversation with Mr. Robertson, I have to state that I did not understand Mr. Robertson to say if I could not make arrangements with Mr. Moore the Society should have the Gardens unconditionally. Mr. Robertson also makes a mistake in saying that there was any one present at the interview but myself.

My reason for not calling on Mr. Robertson again was on account of the determination come to by the Council.

With respect to the damage done to the Gardens by the exhibition of the agricultural implements, as mentioned in Mr. Moore's letter, from what I have heard I believe that such damage was repaired by one man in the course of half an hour; and when it is taken into account not only the amusement but absolute information and instruction which is conveyed to the minds of upwards of two thousand of the public, it does appear to me that the public would not object to be put to so small a cost, which would have been borne by the Society had the demand been made.

In conclusion I will only remark, that had the Government intended to have refused the Society the use of the Gardens (which they did in effect), after having enjoyed that privilege without restriction for so many years, it would have been a mere act of courtesy to intimate to the Society a little sooner that such was their determination. But they now deem it necessary to impose an insurmountable condition to the temporary use of these Gardens, and that for a purpose which it appears to me (and hundreds besides), was one of the objects for which the Botanical Gardens were originally established?

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
H. R. WEBB, assistant secretary.

THE UNEMPLOYED.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

SIR,—The streets of Sydney swarm with men out of employment, and hosts are still coming. What is to become of them? This is the question. Are they to be left, in a Christian country, to starve in the streets? If not, what is to be done for them? Some simple, kind-hearted creatures will probably say, "Let us get up a subscription for them." This might keep the body and soul of some of them together for a time, but a honest, independant, healthy man would almost as soon starve as have his daily bread doled out to him in charity. Besides, all the product of labour (call it money, if you please) given as charity, is as much lost to the country, as if it were burnt or sunk in the sea. Give charity, by all means, to those who are unable to work, but do not let us insult the healthy and strong men, who are willing to work, by offering them charity. Probably it will be asked, what I would suggest? Surely the suggestion must be self-evident to every man. We require the labour of every unemployed man in Sydney, and every man that may arrive in Sydney for years, as much, or more, than they require employment from us.

Are we not actually losing the most fertile and best portion of this colony in the southern district from the want of having railroads? Are we not importing wheat, flour, and the necessaries of life, to the profit of other countries, from the want of railroads? Are not some of the very richest lands in the colony as useless to us as so much space on the ocean—from the want of railroads? Is not this fine country crippled in wealth, deprived of many comforts, and subject to innumerable inconveniences, from the want of railroads?

The Legislature has voted a considerable sum of money for the construction of railways, but the money alone cannot construct them. It is labour, to which we are indebted for railroads, and strong healthy labourers are actually starving in our streets, from the want of employment; therefore every reason which can possibly influence reasonable beings demands a suspension of the red tape influence and their immediate employment.

If we consult our own self-interest, we shall give them immediate employment. If we have the feelings of common humanity, we shall give them, without delay, bread and work. Let the Government offer a fixed rate of wages to all who are willing to accept it, provide the necessary tools, and convey them by rail on to the place where their services are most required. The surveys must surely be sufficiently advanced ere this to give employment to many thousands. If they are not, they ought to be. And the exigencies of the starving thousands are unquestionably strong enough to justify the Government in dispensing with contracts, until the vast numbers now suffering are relieved. This is a work, Sir, which, like mercy, will be doubly blessed. It will bless the Government, or rather the country, who give the employment, and certainly be a blessing to those who are rescued from impending starvation.

Yours, truly,
THOMAS HOLT.

THE COMET.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

SIR,—The Morning Herald of this day contains an imperfect account of an unofficial note which was read last night in the Legislative Council, respecting the much-talked of comet.

I therein stated that the comet was probably the one known as the comet of 1556, in which case its period is of course about 302 years—but that the Observatory is provided, at present, with no instrumental means for observing bodies out of the meridian. At the time of the comet's crossing the meridian, between 3 and 4 p.m., it is of course inv

PRICES OF SECURITIES.

The market has been active during the week, and sales have been effected as follow:—New South Wales Bank shares, at £47 per share; Commercial Bank ditto, at £14 ditto; Joint Stock Bank ditto, at £12 ditto; Australasian Steam ditto, at £14 3s. ditto; N. S. W. Marine Assurance ditto, at £4 ditto; Sydney Fire Insurance, ditto, at 28s. ditto; Gas Light ditto, at £10 17s. 6d. ditto; H. R. New Steam ditto, at £7 10s. ditto; Steam Debentures, 1859, at par, and interest.

New South Wales and Commercial Bank shares are enquired after, and prices have advanced from 5 to 10 per cent. Union Bank shares, although much coveted, are not offered even at the rate quoted—which is an advance of 20 per cent. upon the last sale. There has been a good enquiry for Insurance shares, especially the Sydney Fire Insurance, at extreme rates.

Notwithstanding the favourable position of the Company's affairs, and the increasing traffic, Steam shares have not maintained last prices. Coal and Copper shares are also offered at prices much below their intrinsic value, if governed by the rates of dividend which have been established.

The New South Wales Marine Assurance Company had their half-yearly meeting on the 26th, when the usual dividend, at the rate of 25 per cent. per annum, was declared—leaving a balance at credit of profit and loss account of £1103 4s. 8d.; besides, £10,000 before reserved.

The Union Bank meeting for the half-year, ended 30th June, was held in London, in July, when the dividend was declared, as before, at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum—leaving, £87,099 at credit of profit and loss account as "undivided profit," independently of the reserve of £200,000 invested in Government securities.

SHARE REPORT.—There has been a little more business done in the share market since last report, and stock in the Bank of New South Wales, Commercial Bank, and Sydney Insurance Company, has been sought after at an advance on last week's quotations. Holders are firm, and most of our favourite securities have an upward tendency.

Sales of Australasian Steam Navigation Company's stock shew a decline of 15s. per share on last quotations. In Newcastle Coal and Copper Company's shares, few transactions have taken place; most of this stock is now held for permanent investment. The New South Wales Marine Assurance Company held their half-yearly meeting on Wednesday, when the usual dividend of 12½ per cent. for the half-year was declared. The Bank of New South Wales, and Sydney Insurance Company, hold their half-yearly meetings next week, and favourable reports are looked for.

The following are the prices at which sales have been made during the week:—Bank of New South Wales shares, at £47 per share; Commercial Bank ditto, at £14 ditto; Australian Joint Stock Bank ditto, at £12 ditto; New South Wales Marine Assurance Company ditto, at £4 ditto; Australian Gas Light Company ditto, at £10 17s. 6d. ditto; Sydney Insurance Company ditto, at £1 7s. 6d. and £1 8s. ditto; Australasian Steam Navigation Company ditto, at £14 5s. ditto; Hunter River New Steam Navigation Company ditto, at £7 10s. ditto; Debentures, Australian Steam Navigation Company, due 1859, at 100, and interest accrued.

SYDNEY LABOUR MARKET.

FRIDAY, 22nd OCTOBER.

The Golconda, immigrant ship from England, has arrived, and brings 378 passengers, but over one half of them have come out under the remittance regulations; the rest will be on hire next week. My engagements during the week comprise all descriptions of male and female labour, at about former published rates. It is scarcely necessary to state that the supply of labour is just now rather plentiful, and consequently employers can readily obtain suitable hands for most kinds, at current wages. Disappointed miners continue to come in from the other colonies, and from the western and southern parts, and are wisely turning their attention to reaping and sheep shearing offers in the northern districts.

W. B. HAIGH, King-street East.

The Golconda has arrived with 376 immigrants of a suitable class, comprising—149 single men, and the residue married couples and single female servants. This supply, added to the numbers now seeking employment from Melbourne and also that have returned from Port Curtis, have filled our market with applicants for all kinds of work. Shepherding orders have been checked, from the Northern districts especially, owing to the late interruption caused by the rush to that quarter. The demand has been about as usual from other parts. Wages are somewhat lower, with a tendency to a further decline, but the majority of the disappointed diggers are not altogether suitable for agricultural pursuits, and many of them will doubtless return to their former occupation, and not, ultimately, make much, if any difference in our current rates of labour.

SPENCER ASHLIN, 139, Pitt-street North.

This market is well supplied with labour now. Farm servants will be in request as the harvest draws near. We have a further supply by the Golconda, which arrived this week. Nearly all the passengers are under the prepaid system. Hiring will commence on board either to-morrow, Saturday, or the Monday following. Married couples, without families, are now plentiful, suitable for farm or station service. Boys are much in demand, likewise every description of domestic female servants. Wages remain about the same.

J. C. GLUE, 165, Pitt-street.

PRODUCE CIRCULAR.

WOOL.—Since the date of last circular, the arrivals of wool have been too limited to make a market—only 40 bales being catalogued to-day, which consisted of handwashed and greasy wool: the former, in fair condition, realised 1s. 9½d. per lb.; the latter, from the Upper Hunter District, 9¾d. per lb.; these prices were considered satisfactory.

TALLOW is scarce, which has occasioned a slight rise on last week's prices, but continuance of the present rates cannot be calculated upon.

SHEEPSKINS have slightly improved, and may be quoted half-penny per lb. better than last week.

HIDES.—About 900 changed hands, consisting mostly of station and inferior parcels. The heavy were sold to the trade for tanning on the spot, and 12s. is about the value of the best for shipment.

STOCK AND STATIONS.—Although some large sheep properties in the Western Districts have changed hands at 3os. per head, with wool and lambs given in, it is no criterion of the market value of such properties, and first-class sheep stations would readily find purchasers at higher rates. Our sales have been "Glenmorison" station, in New England District, with about 100 horses and 100 cattle (not mustered); at £3500 "Sherwood" station, Clarence River District, with 1051 head, more or less, cattle, at 64s. per head —horses, stores, &c., at a valuation.

STORE SHEEP AND CATTLE.—There are several good lots in the market, which are held for higher prices than overlanders are offering; we have no transacti ns to report.

FAT STOCK.—The market has been fairly supplied with stock of second-rate quality, and prices have ranged as follows:—

Fat cattle, from £5 to £9
Fat wethers, from 15s. to 18s.

PRODUCE to London—
Wool, 3d. per lb.
Hides, 20s. to 25s. per ton
Tallow, 42s. 6d. to 43s. per ton
Fish oil, 63s. to 75s. per tun
Colonial oil 45s. to 50s. per tun
Gold, ¼ per cent. by sailing vessels, ⅛ ditto by steamer.
Exchange on London—Bank drafts, 1¼ per cent. premium at 60 days' sight.
Private bills (with produce hypothecated), par, if drawn against wool, tallow, or gold.

MORT and CO., Brokers.

Pitt-street, Sydney, 21st October.

MORT AND CO.'S WEEKLY PRODUCE SALE.—THURSDAY, October 21st.—Tare actual; draft 1 lb. per cwt., and no other allowance.—Wool: Mixed, 1 bale at 8½d; skin, 1 at 10¼d; handwashed, HR conjoined, 12 at 21½d; grease, H, 14 at 9¾d; O, 2 at 10d; DK over M, 2 at 18 ½d; 3 bags at 4¼d, 1 ditto at 3½d. Sheepskins: Lot at 7d, lot 6½d, 3 bales at 7¼d, 4 bundles at 8½d, lot at 7¾d, 3 bundles at 8½d, 23 ditto at 8½d, lot at 7d, lot at 8d, lot at 7½d. Tallow: 1 cask at 52s; JR, 1 at 54s 8d; 1 at 50s, 1 at 54s 3d, 1 at 51s 6d, 1 at 59s, 5 at 51s, 1 at 45s 9d; RM, 3 at 50s, 3 at 50s, 3 at 48s 6d. Neatsfoot Oil: 7 casks at 3s 6d. Hides: 4 at 12s, 66 at 7s 9d, 33 at 7s 6d, 85 at 7s 6d, 66 at 7s 6d, 24 at 11s 6d, 190 at 9s 3d, 13 at 8s 6d, 41 at 8s 3d, 52 at 7s, 31 at 7s 3d, 43 at 12s 3d, 77 at 3s 6d, 13 at 12s 3d, 42 at 10s 3d, 20 at 11s 9d, 49 at 11s. Calfskins: 23 at 1s 8d, 23 at 6s 6d. Hoofs: 3 bags at 1s. Shank Bones: 8 bags at 7s 9d. Hair: 1 bag at 3½d, 6 at 6d. Horns: Lot at 24s, lot at 23s, lot at 29s 9d, lot at 23s, lot at 25s, lot at 23s 3d, lot at 29s.

STOCK CIRCULAR.—Fat cattle scarce, and realising extreme prices—prime quality worth per head. Fat sheep maintain their price; prime quality, 20s. per head. Store cattle very little doing, in consequence of holders asking extreme prices. Should the price of beef in Sydney be long maintained, which has for sometime been equal to that in Melbourne, we shall not be able to spare the large drafts hitherto taken to the southward, and store cattle must advance. Store sheep—some small transactions have taken place in these during the week; orders for maiden ewes have come to hand, but holders are standing out for extreme rates.

T. DAWSON, Harrington-street, 22nd October.

SYDNEY MARKETS.—FRIDAY.

[Unless otherwise expressed, the prices quoted in this article are those in transactions between the producer and the first purchaser; not as between one dealer and another, much less the retail prices.]

FLOUR.—The market is steady at last week's quotations. Fine flour £22, second quality £20, per ton of 2000 lbs. Bran 2s per bushel.

WHEAT is quoted at 8s 6d to 9s per bushel, but none has arrived to market from the interior for some time past.

BREAD.—Cash over the counter 5d to 5½d, delivered 5½d to 6d, per 2-lb. loaf.

BISCUIT.—Messrs. Wilkie and Co. quote as follows: Ship 18s, navy 20s, cabin 28s, per 100 lbs. Mr. Hamilton: Ship 19s, pilot 21s, cabin 28s, per 100 lb.

BUTCHERS' MEAT.—Beef 3½d to 4d, mutton 4d to 5d, pork 7d to 8d, veal 6d per lb.

POULTRY AND DAIRY PRODUCE.—Fowls 5s to 5s 6d, ducks 5s to 5s 6d, geese 8s to 10s, cock turkeys 15s to 22s, hen turkeys 8s to 12s, pigeons 1s 6d to 2s, wild ducks, 4s 6d to 5s, teal per couple. Roasting pigs 5s to 7s each. Butter 1s to 1s 3d, cheese 5d to 9d, bacon and hams 8d to 9d, lard 6d to 7d, per lb. Eggs 1s to 1s 2d per dozen.

VEGETABLES.—Old potatoes, £9 to £12 per ton; new, £16 to £20 per cwt; onions, 20s to 30s per cwt. Green peas, 8s to 9s; broad beans, 4s to 5s per bushel. Lettuces, 1s to 2s 6d; pumpkins, 6s to 12s per dozen. Carrots, 2s 6d to 3s 6d; celery, 3s to 8s; rhubarb, 3s 3o 6s; asparagus, 6s to 8s; parsnips, 2s 6d to 3s 6d; leeks, 1s to 1s 6d per dozen bunches.

FRUITS.—Oranges, 4d to 1s 6d; lemons, 9d to 1s 3d; bananas, 2s 3d per dozen. Loquats, 2s to 4s per basket. Strawberries, 2s to 2s 3d per quart.

FORAGE.—Hay, £9 to £12; straw, £6 10s to £8 10s per ton. Green barley, 1s to 1s 6d per dozen bundles.

BARK.—£3 to £3 5s per ton.

CATTLE.—Milch cows, £5 to £7 each. Calves, £1 10s to £2 each. HORSES.—Messrs. Burt and Co. report a fair average amount of business during the week. The demand is still in excess of the supply, and the few country lots that have come to hand have sold readily, at remunerative prices. Several lots of young horses from Shoalhaven and Wollongong have sold from £15 to £35. Prices may be quoted as under:—Heavy draughts, £35 to £50; first class light harness, £25 to £45; inferior ditto, £15 to £25; hacknеys, £20 to £40; poor and inferior ditto, £6 to £18. Messrs. Martyn and Schroder report:—The horse market has been rather dull during the past week, owing to the continued scarcity of horses, and the few that have been offered being chiefly unsuited to the requirements of the market. There is a great scarcity of really first-class saddle horses, and good stylish gig and carriage horses, for which very good prices are obtainable. Heavy draught horses are also very scarce, and a few drafts of upstanding colts, young, and possessing plenty of bone, whether broken or unbroken, would command good prices. Mr. S. Woolley reports:—There is a good demand for draught horses, stock ditto, and town hacks, but horses are scarce in the market.

LEATHER.—List of prices at Simpson, Brothers' Camden Tannery: Sole leather, light, per lb. 1s; ditto heavy ditto, 1s 2d; kip, light, 2s., ditto heavy, 1s 9d; calf, light, 1¾ to 2lb skins, 4s 6d per lb.; ditto strong, 3s 6d to 4s ditto; Indian butts, 3s 6d to 3s 9d; harness leather, black and brown, 1s 3d; bridle and bag side, 15s each; alumed sides, 15s each; saddle, from 10s to 16s per dozen; strong boots, 140s per dozen; coat strap leather, 15s per hide.

RESULT OF PRODUCE SALES.—Messrs. Durham and Irwin report having sold during the present week:—Sheepskins, 1 lot at 7½d per lb., 1 ditto at 8d; hides, 65 at 13s, 36 at 10s, 29 at 11s 10d, 39 at 12s 9d, 5 at 9s 6d, 27 at 9s 3d, 29 at 2s 8d; calfskins, 10 at 3s; horns, 1 lot (354) at 26s, 1 ditto (900) at 26s, 1 ditto (253) at 26s; shank bones, 1 lot at £3 7s 6d per ton; flour, Hawkill, at 43s to 44s; second flour, at £16; wheat, damaged, at 4s 6d; hay, incerne, at from £4 5s to £7 10s.

MR. FULLAGAR sold at his yards this week:—One lot of 1092 sheep, shorn, 200 at 18s 9d each, 892 at 13s; one lot of 700 sheep, in the fleece, at 15s 3d each; one lot of 163 head of inferior cattle, at the following prices: 26 head at £5 9s each, 27 at £5 1s, 26 at £5 4, 10 at £5 15s, 10 at £5 5s, 11 at £4 10s, 7 at £4, 46 at £3 15s; one lot of 87 head of mixed cattle, at the following prices: 19 head at £9 each, 19 at £8 13s 6d, 19 at £8 11s, 10 at £8 15s 6d, 10 at £8 15s, 10 at £8 7s.

RESULT OF PRODUCE, MEAT, AND STOCK SALES.—Pritchard and Williams report having sold during the week—fat oxen, from the Hunter River, at from £8 to £16 each; milch cows and calves, at from £5 10s to £6 each; draught horses, at from £21 10s to £30 10s each; saddle ditto, from £13 to £17 each. Fat sheep, 2s 3d each; lambs, 17s; pigs, 12s 6d, 15s, 18s, 22s 6d, 40s each; fat beef in carcases, 1d to 3d per lb.; bacon, 7d per lb.; hides, 8s to 10s 6d each; horns, 16s to 24s per hundred. About 300 bales Hunter River pressed lucerne hay, at from £4 10s to £7 10s per ton; about 100 bales oaten ditto, at from £3 to £11 per ton; about 60 bales Adelaide ditto, at £8 per ton; straw, at £5 per ton. Several parcels of prime sound dry maize, at 5s 4d to 6s per bushel; bran, 2s 4d per bushel. Hobart Town potatoes, £12 10s to £15 per ton; New Zealand ditto, £10 per ton. Fine flour, £18 to £20 per ton; inferior ditto for pig feed, £7 to £7 10s per ton; three-bushel bags, 12s to 18s per dozen; forest oak shingles, 20s per 1000.

PRINCE ALFRED'S NAVAL EDUCATION.—It is understood that a special passing day will be appointed for the examination of the young sailor prince, at the Royal Naval College, about a week after the next general quarterly examination of candidates for cadetships. His Royal Highness is said to be "well up," not only in the continental languages—German and French particularly—but also in the scientific studies necessary to his vocation; and it is expected that he will occupy a very prominent position in the list of successful candidates. He will pass the College before proceeding on his long voyage in the Euryalus.—United Service Gazette.

FACTS FOR THE TEETOTALERS.—From a return moved for by Mr. John Locke, and just published, it appears that last year there were in the United Kingdom 2416 brewers, 92,065 victuallers, 29,789 persons licensed to sell beer (to be drunk on the premises), and 2765 licensed to sell beer not to be drunk on the premises. The number of victuallers brewing their own beer was 25,026. The number of bushels of malt consumed by the brewers was 25,965,000, by victuallers 7,234,000, and by persons licensed to sell beer 3,158,000 bushels.

GLEANINGS FROM PUNCH.

TO THE LORDS AND COMMONS.—If we were to put a paternal wish into the mouth of Father Thames, it should be: Mercutio's,—"A Plague o' both your Houses,"—for then something would be done to cleanse the River

WORK OR RAISING WOMAN.—A lady has published Thoughts on Self Culture, addressed to Women. A fat and fair friend complains that all the culture she has expended on her person had caused it to grow only in circumference.

THE ORIGIN OF PEG-TOP TROUSERS.—The pattern must have been taken by some inventive genius from the Cochin China. Look at his legs. Depend upon it, their unsightly bagginess first suggested the idea of the "Peg top." Sual's, bankrupt for ideas, rifled the poultry-yard for new forms. The "Goose" has not minded stooping for once to steal from a Cochin China! If this creation of a trouser be not true, it ought to be from the similarity of shape; or is this tory of a peg-top to turn out to be all a "humbug!" We would pause for a reply, only the servant has just announced that "dinner is waiting!"

A DENIAL NOT GIVEN BEFORE IT WAS KNEADED.—A baker, who turns out more "bricks" and "cottages" in the course of one morning than Cunitt does in a whole year, upon being accused of putting alum in his bread, repudiated the charge as a rank (o)alumny.

A BOTANICAL ROOT AND DERIVATION.—We read that "the Bombay Geographical Society announce in their proceedings, that they have received a specimen of the Walking-leaf from Java." A person who walks off is said to take French leave. You may be sure that this tree was originally in France, and, not liking a soil that was subject to many political upheavings, it took French leaf, and walked off. Hence, probably, the origin of that term; or, perhaps, the phrase of "cutting one's stick" may be owing to the habits of this Walking-leaf. It "cuts its stick," and walks away. We think we have very cleverly explained two very vulgar idioms, the exact meaning of which has never till now been properly accounted for. By the bye, the Birnam Wood that walked into Macbeth, must have been a perambulating forest of these Walking-leaves.

CRINOLINE IN THE SLUMS.—Great inconvenience is occasioned by the crowding of the Mart held every Sunday by the Old Clothesmen in Petticoat-lane. The nuisance is of course worse than ever, now that, in consequence of a ridiculous fashion that the ladies of Houndsditch borrow from those of Belgravia, the petticoats of Petticoat lane have attained to such prodigerous dimensions.

TO THE HEADS OF FAMILIES.—It is a familiar saying, that ladies "keep men on by keeping men off." In other words, men are treated by ladies much in the same fashion as their bonnets. They are both held on by being kept back.

A JOKE OF DOUBTFUL PATERNITY.—"I say, Bernal, you know everything," exclaimed, the other night, a half asphyxiated Member, who was vainly trying to deodorise the Thames-stink through a scented pocket handkerchief; "I say, Bernal, what has the Thames done for us that we should call him Father?"—"Well, really, I can't say," replied our second Sibthorp; "unless it be we call him so, because we wish to see him Farther."

INCONSISTENCY OF FASHION.—According to Le Follet, on the "Fashions for July,"—"For chapeau de ville, the most charming wreaths are formed with heart's-ease, double laurel, azaleas, honeysuckle, primroses, cassia, unripe grapes, and small plums." Heart's ease and unripe grapes in the same wreath! what a mistake, considered with any regard to the language of flowers! How can heart's-ease co-exist with stomach ache?

THE BEST WAY OF MANNING THE NAVY.—Increase the number of berths.

DIFFERENCE IN LIFE.—Elderly Gentleman: "Oh, Molly dear, I can recollect the time, when you and I went on a little trip, that we were content to take one simple small trunk between us; but now we cannot move away from home without dragging after us boxes and portmanteaus, and dressing-cases, and travelling bags, and writing-desks, and imperials, and oh! dear me, bonnet-boxes, and the like, without end. And yet, do you know, I often doubt, my dear, whether we have any more enjoyment for having such a plaguy lot of luggage. It strikes me, Molly, that we enjoyed ourselves a precious sight more when we had no more than that 'ere trunk to carry both our things in." [Elderly Gentleman sighs audibly, as he contemplates in the passage the fearful heap of luggage, for which a Pickford's van is waiting outside.]

KEEPING UP A LONG LINE OF CORRESPONDENCE.—We read that Professor Hughes, with his wonderful printing telegraph machines, was enabled at Plymouth to "write through the 3000 miles of Atlantic cable, at the rate of thirty-two letters per minute." That is something like a correspondence! We only wish we could knock off our letters as quickly. Ladies, however, might object to corresponding through such a channel, for though their communications might be everything that was desirable in the way of "linked sweetness long drawn out," still they might object on the ground of their being so extremely "wire-drawn." By the bye, the above rapidity of communication will be the ruin of our penny-a-liners. Fancy transmitting the President's message by the Atlantic cable. As it would resolve itself, knotty points and all, into only one line, so our poor penny a-liner would receive for the transmission of it only one penny. Measured by the same rule, the longest yarn about the American Sea Serpent would not amount to more. We are afraid that the creative geniuses, who fill our columns with vegetable and meteorological phenomena, will find their imaginative profession completely snared and killed, as dead as any Welsh rabbit by this long wire. In the meantime, the penny-a-liner's fate is mercifully suspended, inasmuch as the chain has come once more to an open rupture, owing to several of the links, that should constitute its unity and strength, having broken out again, and proved their inveterate snappishness.

THE JOCULAR MARKET.—We make the following extract from a provincial paper, as it alludes to a new article of commerce that has not been extensively imported as yet from the colonies: "Molasses.—A few puns of West India have found buyers at 15s. to 16s. per cwt." We are afraid that these "puns" must be of rather a heavy description, since they are sold by the "cwt." A "hundred weight of puns" does not seem a lively article to purchase in this hot weather. How many years have they been kept in the wood, and can they be warranted sound and dry? Since they are sold in connexion with molasses, we should conclude that they were good for mixing, and would probably make a great stir amongst Clapham tea-parties, or would be in great demand with the vestrymen of Little Pedlington, settling the affairs of the nation over their hot grog. However, it is highly wrong to condemn an article before one has tasted it, and, accordingly, if our West Indian agent will send us another small sample of these "puns" (say, half-a pound to begin with), we will promise to report upon them, and say how far they are likely to suit the English palate. We suspect that they are better adapted for the Record and the Tablet, and other elderly ladies, who, when they do indulge in a pun, or a witticism, always fall into the fatal error of making it too sweet.

VICTORIA, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith, &c.

To the Widow and next of kin of GEORGE JAMES M'KENNY, late of Wollongong, in the colony of New South Wales, storekeeper, deceased, greeting.

WHEREAS, it is represented to us in our Supreme Court of New South Wales, that the said GEORGE JAMES M'KENNY departed this life on or about the eighteenth day of October, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, intestate, having at the time of his death goods, and chattels and credits in the said colony, we hereby cite you to appear personally, or by your proctor, before our said Court, at the Court-house, in King-street, Sydney, on the eighth day of November next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, then and there to accept or refuse letters of administration of the goods, chattels, and credits of the said deceased, or to show cause, if you know any, why the same should not be committed to JOHN FRAZER, of Wynyard-square, Sydney, in the said colony, merchant, as a creditor of the said deceased.

Witness, the Honorable Sir Alfred Stephen, Knight, our Chief Justice of our said Court in Sydney, this twenty-second day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, and in the twenty-second year of our reign.

For the Prothonotary, D. B. HUTCHINSON, (L S.)
Chief Clerk of Supreme Court.

WILLIAM RUSSELL, Lyons-buildings, 227, George-street, Sydney, Proctor for said John Fraser.

WHERE SHALL I DINE? Where shall I Drink? The Cry is where to get a Glass of Good Ale. Try the articles at ETHERINGTON'S; the Nell Gwynne, corner of York and Market streets, where you can Dine for One Shilling and preserve your health. N.B.—The viands are of the best quality. English Ales, Bass and Allsopp's.

CLYDE RIVER.—JAMES SPENCER CARTER begs to inform the inhabitants of Braidwood and all travelling via Clyde River, that he has opened the Clyde River Hotel, at Currawong Creek, 19 miles from Nelligen

COOK'S RIVER.—Horses and Cattle taken in to grass. Apply to Mr. JOSEPH NOBBS, near Undercliff; or to Mr. GEORGE ROSE, Pulteney Hotel, Cook's River.

AGENCY, Established 1840.—HENRY FERRIS Pitt-street, Sydney, begs to remind his old constituents and the public general y that he continues to act as agent for the sale of flour, wheat, maize, and all kinds of farm produce; also, gold, wool, hides, sheepskins, and tallow. H. F. would be happy to undertake a large agency of flour, his stores being centrally situated, and free from vermin.

Remittances always accompany account sales.

Colonial tobacco, best brands, always on SALE.

Address, HENRY FERRIS, Pitt-street, near the Theatre.

WOOL and SHEEPSKINS.—The undersigned are cash purchasers of Wool, washed or unwashed, and Sheepskins; or will make liberal cash advances on the same consigned to their friends, Messrs. S. Kennard and Co., London; or Messrs. Holt, Brothers, Leeds. JOY and CO., iron store, behind the Custom House.

THE UNDERSIGNED are prepared to receive Colonial Produce for SALE, as wool, tallow, hides, &c., or to make liberal advances on wool, if consigned to their friends, Messrs. FREDERICK HUTH and CO., in London. Orders upon produce and manufactured goods to be purchased here, and South Australia, or in any of the China, Indian, or European, markets, will be as promptly executed as opportunity admits of—charges moderate. LENDER, MULLER, and CO., King-street, corner of Commercial Wharf.

NEW PRODUCE STORES, Pitt-street, Circular Quay.—R. P. RICHARDSON (late sales' clerk to Messrs. T. S. Mort and Co.), Auctioneer, Broker, and Commission Agent.

Liberal cash advances on wool, tallow, hides, or any description of produce for sale or shipment.

Bank-buildings, George-street, 15th September.

SIR JOSEPH BANKS HOTEL.—Zoological Gardens, Botany. W. BEAUMONT, proprietor.

MANLY BEACH PIER HOTEL.—Mr. COHEN begs to inform his friends and patrons that he is now prepared to receive boarders upon the most reasonable terms, private and detached apartments, with every luxury, first-class attendance, &c., &c., for invalids, bridal parties, and others seeking the salubrious air of Manly Beach. ☞ Mr. Cohen wishes it to be perfectly understood that his terms for boarders are as reasonable as any private lodgings in or near the locality, with superior cuisine, and other accommodations not to be attained elsewhere.

NEW BRIGHTON HOTEL, Manly Beach.—Parties visiting Manly Beach are assured that they will receive every attention and civility at the above hotel.

The very best qualities of wines, spirits, beers, and cordials are kept, and the charges are the same as in Sydney.

Ample accommodation and every comfort being provided at the Brighton Hotel, the patronage of visitors and picnic parties is respectfully invited.

Great care being taken in the keeping up of a good larder, visitors to the Brighton Hotel will not be disappointed when ordering luncheons.

GEORGE BIRCH, proprietor.

WILLIAM DUNN, late of Solitary Creek, having removed to the Royal Hotel, in Hartley, begs respectfully to solicit a continuance of that patronage he has for several years enjoyed, and which, by attention, with a supply of the very best articles, he will endeavour to deserve. Clean and well aired beds and good stabling; also, the booking office for the royal mail.

ROYAL HOTEL, SHOALHAVEN.—W. A. WHEATLEY, late of the Custom House Hotel, Sydney, begs respectfully to inform the inhabitants generally, and sportsmen in particular, that he has opened a first-class hotel at Shoalhaven, which for cleanliness, comfort, and accommodation cannot be surpassed by any house in Sydney. Steamers running four times a week, and the finest wild fowl shooting in the colony to be had within a mile of the hotel. Charges very moderate. First-rate stabling and paddocks for horses. Horses kept always ready for ladies and gentlemen.

MICHAEL GUILFOYLE, Nurseryman, Florist, and Seedsman, Ornamental and Landscape Gardener, Exotic Nursery, Double Bay, begs to remind parties desirous of procuring large or small quantities of PLANTS, that he has the most extensive collection of all sorts of Ornamental Trees and Shrubs, and also of Flowering Plants, every description, which was ever offered to the public to select from since gardening was known in the colony. An inspection of the Nursery is especially invited.

☞ Prices strictly moderate, with the usual allowance to the trade. N.B.—Flower and Vegetable Seeds of every description.  Native Seeds, in great variety always ready in collections.

NOTICE.—Mr. THOMAS DAWSON, Auctioneer and Agent, begs to remind his up-country friends that having obtained a general Auctioneer's License, effects sales of all kinds of stock, stations, and produce. For the reception of consignments his arrangements are complete. Address 107, Harrington-street.

NOTICE.—LOUIS GARDERE and CO., 12, William-street, Woolloomooloo, beg to inform their friends that, in consequence of departure for Europe at the end of the year, they will sell off their stock, comprising Jouvin's and Froment's kid gloves, warranted first quality; perfumery, stationery, chinaware, shades, fancy articles, artificial flowers, silk hats, &c., &c., at low prices.

DEAFNESS and DEFECTIVE VISION.—The Organic Vibrator, an extraordinary powerful, small, newly invented instrument for deafness, entirely different from all others, to surpass anything of the kind that has been produced: it, being of the same colour of the skin, is not perceptible. It enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and public assemblies. The unpleasant sensation of singing noises in the ear is entirely removed, and it affords all the assistance that can be possibly desired.

THE EYESIGHT.—INVALUABLE NEWLY INVENTED SPECTACLES.—Mr. DE LISSA, the branch firm of S. and B Solomons, of Piccadilly, London, opticians to the Royal Family. The optical improvements made by this firm, by their valuable tinted glasses, enable persons of advanced age to read with ease, and to distinguish the most minute object. The glasses have this advantage over spectacles in common use—the vision is strengthened and preserved, and the eye kept at its required temperature.

☞ Mr. DE LISSA, optician and aurist, No. 8, Wynyard-square. Optician to the Sydney Ophthalmic Institution.

RELINQUISHING BUSINESS.—The undersigned, who is about leaving the colony in January next on account of ill-health, is desirous of disposing of his well established (since 1852) lamp and oil business, now in full trade. The advertiser, having carried on the above trade with the best procurable stock, has met with complete success and obtained a reputation throughout the colony not to be surpassed. It would be superfluous to say more, the advertiser will prove it to be a ready-money and well-paying business. Applications will be received until the early part of November. ☞ The capital required will be comparatively small, and persons desirous of entering at once into business can do so without delay, and should not lose the present opportunity. J. GRIMM, Lamp and Oil Warehouse, 287, George-street, Sydney, opposite the EMPIRE Office.

 A good workman for the mechanical department will be procured at one, two or three years' engagement.

STEAM FLOUR MILLS, Sussex-street.—ARCHIBALD BLAIR begs respectfully to acquaint merchants, settlers, grocers, agents, and the public generally, that his Steam Mills are now open for the reception of all kinds of grist work. A. B. would here mention that, being in possession of machinery of a superior description, he is enabled to manufacture flour equal to any mill in England or America. All kinds of spices, pepper, &c., ground, and flour redressed, upon reasonable terms. Rice cleaned in any quantity, by machinery made for that especial purpose. ARCHIBALD BLAIR, miller, Union Wharf.

Instruction given in the art. 392 George-street. FREEMAN, BROTHERS.

HALLOTYPES.—GREAT DISCOVERY—Halliotypes, acknowledged by the profession in England and America to be the greatest improvement yet effected in Photography. In those pictures the richest drapery is represented with all its original gloss, and given with such stereoscopic effect, as to almost deceive the examiner, and lead him to think he is in reality looking on the fabric itself. Every mark and line is faithfully preserved, and the flesh-colour is completely blended with hues closely, if not exactly, corresponding with those in Nature. At the opening Exhibition, in New York, every one was surprised with the great relief given to the image, each fold of the drapery appeared as if it were raised up, or had fallen upon a glass; although it were a semi-transparent body, and representing in every respect a raised image, rather than a shadow or flat surface.

The above pictures are the invention of J. Bishop Hall, of New York, and is taken only at these galleries.

Also, the best style of Paper Photography, Enamelled Crayon Collodiotypes, Malainotypes, &c., as usual. T. S. GLAISTER'S Excelsior Photographic Galleries, 247, Pitt-street, next the Victoria Theatre.

Artists in the country can order by post, and rely upon everything being supplied of the very best quality, carefully packed.

Amateurs supplied with Nitrate of Silver Baths, Collodion, Developing and Fixing Solutions, and every other article necessary for practising the art, ready prepared, with full instructions for use.

Gentlemen having a little leisure will find this a most interesting and useful occupation, and Mr. T. S. GLAISTER would draw attention to the fact that he can, for a few pounds, furnish them with all the apparatus and information necessary for taking pictures rapidly and truthfully.

T. S. GLAISTER, 247, Pitt-street, next the Victoria Theatre.

FANCY HAIR WORK.—G. C. COOK, Hair Jeweller, takes this opportunity of returning his grateful thanks for the liberal support he has received since he has been in business in Sydney, and assures those kind friends who have favoured him with their patronage that there shall be nothing wanting on his part to merit a still further continuance of their favours; and to those that have not favoured him with their patronage, he begs most respectfully to solicit a trial, feeling assured from the practical knowledge he possesses in the ornamental hair-working, combined with moderate charges, he shall be able to give entire satisfaction. 239, Pitt-street, two doors north of the Victoria Theatre, near King-street. G. C. C. would also beg to call the attention of ladies and gentlemen to his superior stock of London-made jewellery, just received by the R. M. S. S. Emeu.

SALES BY AUCTION.

Important to Racing Men and Stud Masters.
Mr. Hugh M'Gowan's Thorough-bred Stock.

BURT and CO. are favoured with instructions to sell by auction, at their Bazaar, Pitt-street, Sydney, on MONDAY, January 18th, 1859, at 12 o'clock, The following first-class stock from Mr. Hugh M'Gowan's well-known stud:—

1st.—The noted brood mare "Jessy," by Muleyson (imported), dam by Camerton (imported). Jessy is the dam of Samson, Sportsman, Venison, Jessina, and other celebrated horses; is also grandam of Spiletta and Templar, both winners. All Jessy's foals, with one exception only, have proved winners. Has been sent to Chatterbox this year.

2nd.—"Samson Junior," brown colt, foaled 4th October, 1856, by Mr. Tait's Cossack, out of Jessy; is a very fine colt, with great power, and stands now fifteen hands one inch high; is entered for the Produce Stakes at Liverpool, and the Triennial at Homebush, 1859.

3rd.—"Mirzetta," brown filly, foaled 6th October, 1856, by Cossack, out of Mirza, dam of Spiletta and Templar; is now fifteen hands high, and a very beautiful filly; is entered for the Liverpool Produce Stakes, and Homebush Triennial, 1859.

4th.—"Squirrel," a chesnut filly, three-years-old, by imported Ether, out of Mirza; has never started in public, but is warranted very fast; was entered for the two-year-old Stakes at Liverpool, but withdrawn in consequence of an accident. Is now thoroughly sound.

☞ The auctioneers feel it almost unnecessary to call attention to the sale of the foregoing horses. For some years Mr. M'Gowan has had the reputation of being the most successful breeder of racing stock, which had at all times brought the highest prices. His two-year-old winners both this year and the last brought 250 guineas each. The sale will be unreserved, and the horses will be on view at the Bazaar three days prior to sale.

Railway Freehold Cottage Property, situate at Woodburn-street, Chippendale.

To small Capitalists, Tradesmen, Mechanics, the Working Classes generally, and others.

MESSRS. W. DEAN and CO. are honoured with instructions from the Railway Commissioners to sell by public auction, at their Warehouse, Pitt and O'Connell streets, on TUESDAY, the 26th October, at half-past 12 o'clock,
The following freehold cottage property, situate in Woodburn-street, Chippendale:—
Lot 1. All that parcel of land, marked A on the plan and coloured red, situate at Chippendale, in the district of Sydney, New South Wales, bounded on the west by a line commencing at the western boundary fence of the Great Southern Railway at its junction with the east side of Woodburn-street, bearing north 46 feet 2 inches; on the north by a line bearing east 28 feet 1 inch, to the western boundary fence of the Great Southern Railway; on the east and south-east by the two lines (being the western boundary fence of the Great Southern Railway) the first bearing south 25½ degrees west, 34 feet 7 inches; and the second bearing south 43 degrees west, 19 feet to the point of commencement.
On the above allotment is erected a brick cottage, containing four rooms, with out-houses and yard, substantially fenced in, and let to a respectable tenant.
Lot 2.—All that parcel of land marked B on the plan, and coloured red, situate at Chippendale, in the district of Sydney, New South Wales, bounded on the west by the eastside of Woodburn-street, commencing at a point 70 feet 11 inches north from the western boundary fence of the Great Southern Railway, at its junction with the east side of Woodburn-street, and bearing north 24 feet 9 inches; on the north by a line bearing east 52 feet 1 inch; on the east by a line bearing south 22 degrees west 25 feet 6 inches. And on the south by a line bearing west 42 feet 8 inches to the point of commencement.
This lot contains a framed house, which at a trifling cost might be turned into a respectable private dwelling.
The auctioneers simply wish to state that the above valuable properties are brought into the market for absolute sale, and therefore parties having a limited amount of capital at their command cannot possibly do better than invest in property situate as this is, in so improving and flourishing a neighbourhood.
Title, unquestionable.
Terms—10 per cent. cash deposit, the balance at one month.
For plans and further particulars apply to the auctioneers.

Valuable Agricultural Farm, containing 100 acres, situate at Joe Wiki's Meadow, near the head of the Wingicarribee Swamp, between Bong Bong and Berrima, and adjoining Throsby Park Run.
Title unquestionable.

R. P. RICHARDSON has received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Bank Buildings, George-street, on FRIDAY, 5th November, at 11 o'clock,
A really eligible and valuable farm, containing 100 acres, situate about ten miles from the town of Berrima, being portion of 237½ acres granted to John Stagge.
About five acres of this land have been partly cleared and fenced, and a small stockyard and hut have been erected. The trees on about twenty acres have been sapped and are dead, and the remaining timber consists principally of sassafras, myrtle, hickory, and other choice woods.
The soil is acknowledged by all to be equal to the richest in the country, and is remarkably well watered.
☞ The auctioneer can with confidence recommend this property to the attention of parties in search of a well-known good piece of land in a first-rate locality, which, when the southern line is completed to Picton, will be only about twenty-four miles from railway communication with Sydney. A portion of the land has been cropped with corn and potatoes, being too rich for wheat, and it may be stated that sawyers are now cutting some of the timber on the land, and getting 6d. to 8d. per foot for it in Berrima.
Plan on view at the Rooms.
Terms at sale.

For Positive Sale,
CITY OF SYDNEY.
FIRST-CLASS GEORGE-STREET PROPERTY, extending through and having FRONTAGE to PITT-STREET also, being those very extensive premises now in the occupation of Messrs. LANE and CO., Ship Chandlers.
Title—Unquestionable.
For full particulars apply to W. W. BILLYARD, Esq.

R. P. RICHARDSON has received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Bank Buildings, George-street, corner of Jamison-street, on MONDAY, 1st November, at 11 o'clock,
All that valuable block of land, containing 30 square perches, more or less, and having frontages of 35 FEET, more or less, to GEORGE-STREET, and extending through to, and having 34½ FEET, more or less, to NEW PITT-STREET, with a depth of about 233 feet, together with the extensive ranges of stone and brick buildings erected thereon, comprising as follows:—
The PREMISES fronting George-street, a two-story building, with extensive stores and cellars in the basement, which open into the yard.
 There is an arched gateway entrance from George-street to the yard under the north end of this building.
The EXTENSIVE STORES at the back of the above used as sail lofts, &c., together with the RANGES of SHEDS beyond, extending the whole length of New Pitt-street.
☞ The above premises are now in the occupation of Messrs. LANE and CO., for the residue of a long lease, expiring in February next. Considering their proximity to the CIRCULAR QUAY and CAMPBELL'S WHARF, and the frontage to both George and Pitt streets, the TWO GREAT THOROUGHFARES of the CITY, the auctioneer feels justified in calling attention to it as one of the MOST VALUABLE CITY PROPERTIES that has been in the market for a long time. Indeed, there are very few properties that enjoy a double frontage of such value and extent, and for business in connection with the shipping, that advantage cannot be over-estimated.
Plan and full particulars at the Rooms.
Terms at sale.

Town of Gladstone,
Port Curtis.
The Gladstone Hotel, with Two Substantial Stores and convenient Wharf, with a large Block of Land in the best position in the town.

R. P. RICHARDSON has received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Bank Buildings, George-street, on FRIDAY, 26th November, at 11 o'clock,
The unexpired term of lease of the following choice allotments in the town of Gladstone:—Allotments 10, 11, 18, and 19 of section 1, and allotments Nos. 12, 13, 14, 15, 38, 39, and 40 of section 2; having about ten years to run, at an annual rental of £89. On which there are erected:
The Gladstone Hotel, a weatherboard building, 61 feet by 41 feet, containing six rooms, verandah all round, and fitted with every convenience; also large kitchen, slabbed, floored, with verandah, &c.
Two substantial stores, with a fine wharf.
The whole of the land and premises are sub-let to Mr. Hardie, at a rental of £209 per annum, on a lease having about two years to run.
☞ No one will deny the importance and value of property in the town of Gladstone, which there cannot be a doubt is in the centre of a vast gold producing district, now on the eve of being developed.
A large amount has been expended in erecting the above described premises, which are now in full trade, doing a flourishing business.
Plan and further particulars at the Rooms.
Terms at sale.

Redfern.
Two remarkably neat Verandah Cottages, in William-street, immediately at the rear of Mr. Shepherd's grocery store, in Pitt-street.

R. P. RICHARDSON has received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Bank-buildings, George-street, on FRIDAY, 29th October, at 11 o'clock,
All that piece of land, having 30 feet frontage to William-street, Redfern, near its junction with Wells-street, with a depth of 100 feet, extending to a lane, with two weatherboard cottages erected thereon, containing severally verandahs and three and four rooms, with good yard, well of water, &c., at the rear.
☞ These are two neat genteel cottages, with pretty gardens, both front and back. They adjoin Mr. Clemesha's property, and are divided by a lane from that of Mr. Shepherd's. Those on the look-out for a small investment are invited to inspect them prior to the sale, for they are completed and finished in a style that will bear scrutiny.
Terms at sale.
Title—the usual Redfern estate title.
